At Your Fingertips

At your fingertips. Exactly what is at a student's fingertips and how can he learn about it?

Opportunities - through athletics, academics, clubs, activities, and social events - are available for students throughout high school. At Middleburg High School, the students themselves must decide which areas of high school life they enjoy - participate in them, learn from them, and grow from them. Will the student choose to be part of a winning sports team or participate in a club sport just for leisure? Will he join an organization to improve the school or one that helps people in the community? Will he devote all his time to the study of academics or will he participate in outside activities too? Will he establish and develop good social relationships with his peers and teachers or will he choose to spend his time alone? Most likely, the student will choose to experience at least one or perhaps many of these opportunities during high school.

Whatever the choice, whoever makes the decision, MHS provides these opportunities for the students - at your fingertips.

Sports, activities, and academics are all "At Your Fingertips" during high school, but what about after high school? What will be "At Your Fingertips" then?

College....Vocational school....Armed Forces Job market....Marriage....All are possibilities, and high school is the ideal time to prepare for them. The MHS curriculum offers vocational agriculture, home economics, business, and advanced courses in order to provide a solid background for the students' future. Sun Area Technical School is an ideal opportunity for students interested in a particular job market to get a feel for that specific occupation.

Extra-curricular activities also assist students in the preparation of their future by the development of responsibility. Sports, music, and clubs, including the Varsity Club, Key Club, and Student Council, all require responsibility from their members by attendance at practices, meetings, and other special events throughout the year. Students who have a position of leadership in any of these clubs develop responsibility through organizing and conducting meetings, and by being a good example for other members of the activity.

High school is an important time in the development of one's future. And so, if properly prepared, many opportunities will be "At Your Fingertips" after high school.

In The News

News plays an important role in daily American life. Nationally, news stories caught the attention and interest of many people throughout the nation.

Last spring, Jim Bakker resigned from PTL and "holy wars" started as a result. During the summer, Lt. Col. Oliver North began his testimony of the Iran-Contra scandal. Television stations all over America broadcasted the Senate hearings of North's trial, followed by the testimony of other officials.

Another national news story was Pope John Paul II's visit to America during September. Also during September, Americans celebrated the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution. "We the People" served as a theme for local events and the national recognition on September 16, 1987. Finally, the nomination of Robert H. Bork to the U.S. Supreme Court sparked yet another set of Senate hearings.

Reporting news stories is necessary in today's society. Americans need to be aware of the events taking place in the world around them. National events affect students and individuals everywhere.

The sports scene provided many unforgettable moments for both the players and the fans this past year. Mike Schmidt highlighted baseball season by hitting his 500th homerun, while Pat Cash stunned the tennis world with his amazing comeback from an injury by defeating Ivan Lendl in the Wimbledon final. A strike in the NFL, resulting from conflicts concerning free agency, brought criticism from many avid football fans during the 1987-1988 season.

Alf is Hot

Students at MHS enjoyed a wide variety of TV shows ranging from comedies to detective shows to soap operas; however, comedies seemed to attract the most viewers. Students rated Alf, a comedy starring a creature from outer space, number one. Following that were Growing Pains and The Cosby Show, both comedies focusing on the good and bad times of family life in the 80's.

Music Mania

The music world rang with the sizzling voices of the groups White Snake, Europe, Poison, and Motley Crue. "Here I Go Again," by White Snake, climaxed as number one on the charts, while Motley Crue's "Girls, Girls, Girls" was also a hit. Poison stormed into the action with the songs "I Want Action" and "I Won't Forget You," while Michael Jackson re-entered the music scene with his new album Bad. Europe continued its success with "Carrie," and "Wipe Out" added to the popularity of Fat Boys.

Fads and Fashions

Students at MHS followed the current fashion trends. Denim was popular and acceptable in any array of styles. Whether they were stonewashed, acid-washed, or frosted - denim jeans, skirts, mini-skirts, jackets, and purses were a big fad among students.

Khaki seemed to be the favorite color choice and "everyone" wore shoes called camp moccasins or oxfords. Carried over from past years, Swatch watches, Reebok sneakers, rolled up pants, and Coca-Cola clothing represented status symbols in fashion.

Dirty Dancing, a story set in the sixties, starred Patrick Swayze and Jennifer Grey. Platoon, a movie portraying the Vietnam War, brought in millions, yet raised controversy from veterans who actually went through the war. Nightmare on Elm Street and Lost Boys were also popular movies with the students.

STUDENT LIFE

CENTER: Angela Long examines slides through a microscope. INSERT: Band members march through the streets of Middleburg during the summer parade.

Student life - at your fingertips. Student life is all the different branches of the student's activities while in high school. All the events in student life cause students to take a second look at their high school life and the social happenings around them.

During the spring, band and chorus members performed separate concerts, which provided enjoyment for the audience and other students. The 1987 spring play cast practiced long and hard to perfect the mystery/suspense play, "Hound of the Baskervilles." Talented athletes received awards at the annual sports banquet for their outstanding abilities in the athletic fields.

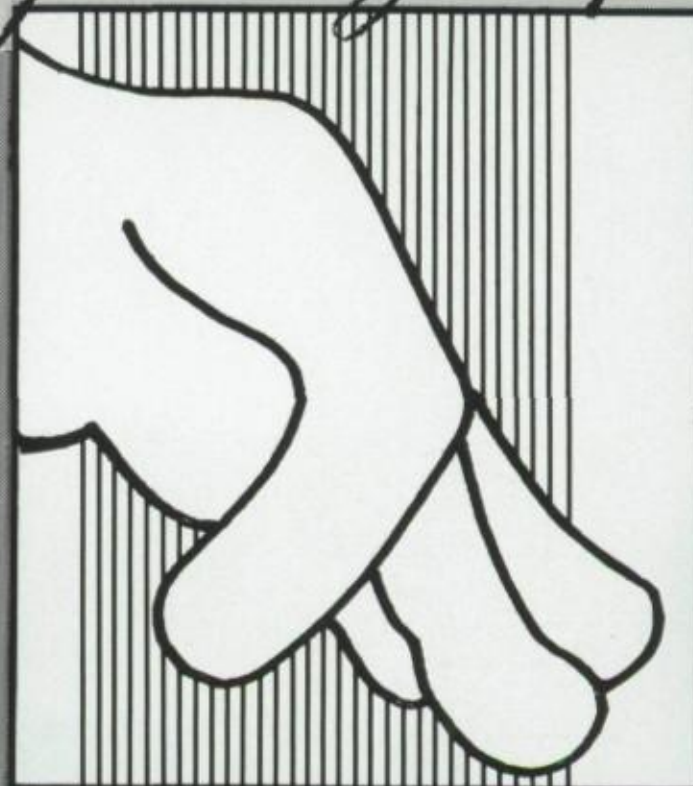

During May, students looked forward to the 1987 Junior - Senior Prom, "Heaven In Your Eyes," which was a more formal activity. The class of 1988 spent months thinking, discussing, preparing and finally decorating for the special event.

As graduation occurred, the class of 1987 completed their lives as students at MHS. They then began totally new, different lives in a complex and challenging world.

In October, classes and clubs prepared floats for the Homecoming theme "We the People."

All the events and people of student life are at MHS for the students - at your fingertips.

Arbogast, Wagner Reign at 1987 Prom

On Friday, May 15, 1987, the Junior Class, after intense preparation, presented the 1987 Junior-Senior Prom. "Heaven in Your Eyes" marked the theme of the prom. The group "Jammer" provided musical entertainment. In addition, the Junior Class supplied cake, punch, pretzels, chips, peanuts, and mints for refreshments.

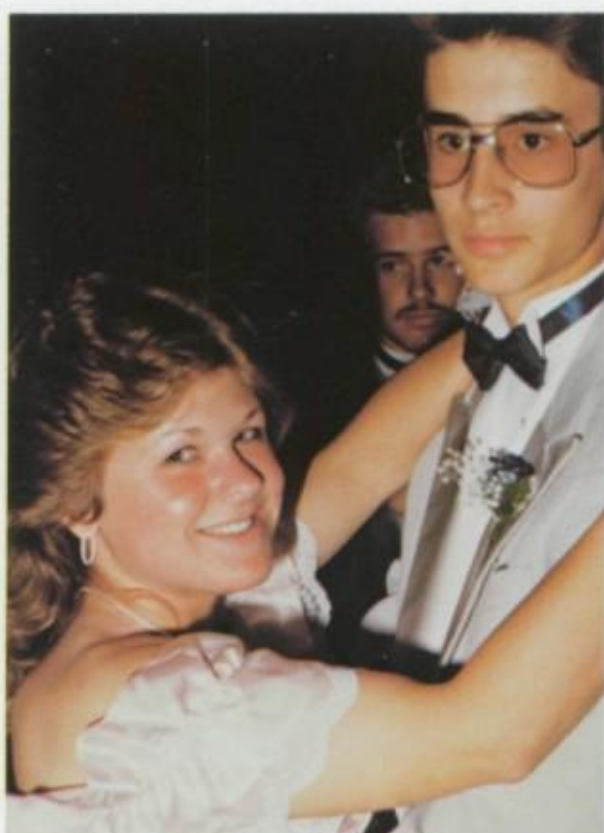

A heaven scene painted in blue, white, and purple comprised the backdrop accompanied by two balloon-covered arches which stood in front of it. A canopy of blue, silver, and purple balloons hung from the ceiling of the gym along with clouds and stars. The juniors placed two silver moonbeams at the entrance of the gym and two other moonbeams stood by the refreshment table.

At 10:00 p.m. two couples of young children led the court, consisting of six couples and last year's king and queen, down a path of silver stars lined with balloons. After reaching the risers in front of the gym, the couples anxiously awaited for Michelle Myers and Matthew Ferster to announce the 1987 prom king and queen. The 1986 royal couple, Kathy Folk and Curt Smith, surrendered their crowns to their successors, Andrea Wagner and Brian Arbogast.

Junior Class Officers, Advisors Organize Prom

Preparing for a successful prom takes a great deal of work, not only from the juniors but also from the advisors. Junior Class officers along with the advisors began planning the event early in the school year by organizing a candy sale and appointing prom committees.

Juniors who wanted to help with the prom signed up in home-rooms and the advisors assigned them to committees. The six prom committees included theme and decorations, court, refreshments, publicity, tables and chairs, and entertainment. The class advisors appointed two chairpersons to each committee.

The Class of 1988 participated in ham sandwich and candy sales. The annual magazine sale also added to the funds needed for the prom. Juniors who sold $25.00 worth of candy and magazines could assist in decorating the gym.

Chairpersons, the theme and decorating committee, and other selected students who helped throughout the year decorated half a day and after school Thursday and all day Friday prior to the prom. Other juniors who reached the fund raising requirement decorated half a day Friday.

Following the prom the Senior Class provided a post prom in the high school. Students who attended could play ping pong or watch the movies Stand By Me, Top Gun, and Ferris Bueller's Day Off. The seniors also supplied refreshments.

Five Students Speak at Graduation

With a variation of future plans, the class of 1987 graduated at 8:00 p.m. on June 12, 1987. Commencement exercises took place in the high school gymnasium because of inclement weather conditions.

The senior chorus members sang "Just for Today" and the senior band members played "Nothing's Gonna Stop Us Now," which was the senior class song. Shane Kratzer, Senior Class Treasurer, presented the class gift, a golf cart, to Principal Robert Apple.

Paul Riggs, salutatorian, delivered a message entitled "Teach Us More." In his presentation, Paul expressed his belief that there is always more to learn.

Valedictorian, Hilary Eppley, presented her message entitled "The Unwritten Amendment." Hilary emphasized that everyone should use their right to think.

Also speaking for the class of 1987 were Lucinda Graybill with "Rites of Passage: The Stairway to Adulthood;" Jennifer Dippery with "When is Success Achieved;" and Melinda Graybill with "Role Models and the Parts They Play."

Finally, the class of 1987 received the long awaited diplomas. Mr. Howard Benner Jr., President of the Board of Education, and Principal Robert Apple presented the diplomas to the seniors.

Drama Department Celebrates Sherlock Holmes 100th Anniversary

The MHS Drama Department presented a Sherlock Holmes mystery, "The Hound of the Baskervilles" on April 10 and 11 at 8:00 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The two-act mystery by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle kept the audience in suspense both nights of this performance. The plot of the story included elements of murder, mystery, and intrigue.

"The Hound of the Baskervilles" was an appropriate choice by the drama department, since 1987 marked the centennial of the first appearance of a Sherlock Holmes story. "The Hound of the Baskervilles" is one of the top ten classic mystery stories of all time.

Under the direction of Willis Clawser, eleven students participated in this production. Members of the Theatre Arts Club assisted with costumes, make-up, lighting, and sound. Students of the Poster Club made posters and helped with the advertising for the play. The stage crew constructed new props and then painted the scenery to provide an appropriate set for the production.

Exchange Student Crowned Homecoming Queen

Friday, October 16, students and parents gathered at the athletic field to view the crowning of the 1987 homecoming queen. During halftime of the varsity game, Mr. Matthew Soto announced the court as they walked onto the field. Tricia Schnure relinquished her crown to our German foreign exchange student, Sabine Hermann. Her escort was Randy Klose. The runner-up was Cindy Stroup.

Earlier in October, students in 10th, 11th, and 12th grades voted on candidates for the homecoming court. The senior high then voted on one senior girl. Each candidate chose her escort.

That night other activities took place. The JV and varsity soccer teams faced the Williamsport Millionaires but lost 3-2 in two ten-minute overtimes. The JV cheerleaders performed a routine to "Only In My Dreams" during halftime of the JV game. Between games the varsity cheerleaders splashed to "Wipe Out".

Afterward student council held a dance in the cafeteria from 9:30-11:00 P.M. The court danced in the spotlight to "In My Dreams". Onyx Sound System provided the music, and student council provided refreshments.

Student Council Plans Homecoming Week

Throughout homecoming week, October 12-17, Student Council planned several activities. Many students participated in the five dress up days consisting of college sweatshirt, blue and gold, hat and sunglasses, inside out, and look your best days.

On Thursday, October 16, at 6:00 p.m. the fifth annual homecoming parade began at the Emmanuel Lutheran Church. Matthew Ferster led the parade in his convertible carrying Judge Wayne Bromfield and his family. The Middleburg High School Band followed performing to "Nothing's Gonna Stop Us Now." Seventh through twelfth grade classes and many clubs including FHA, FFA, and the German Club expanded the theme "We the People" to make their floats. Student Council provided the float for the court. Area firetrucks also formed the parade.

Following the parade the junior varsity and varsity field hockey teams battled Greenwood. The JV team tied the Wildcats with a score of 1-1. The varsity Wildcats downed the Middies, 1-0.

Friday afternoon the Student Council presented the homecoming assembly. Kristina Mauser, Student Council president, began the assembly by greeting the students and introducing the junior varsity cheerleading squad. The JV cheerleaders performed a routine to "Only in My Dreams." The assembly continued with Mr. Matthew Soto, the varsity field hockey coach, and Mr. James Aurand, the junior varsity soccer coach, commenting on the teams. Next, Valerie Apple and Becky Bramer sang "Perhaps Love." The varsity cheerleaders then entertained the audience with their moves to "Wipe Out." Finally, Mr. Douglas Moyer introduced the court while Mrs. Coleen Renshaw provided musical accompaniment.

Friday after the soccer game, the homecoming festivities concluded with a dance in the high school cafeteria. Onyx Sound System provided musical entertainment.

PEOPLE

CENTER: Junior high students rush to the cafeteria for their lunch break. INSERT: Tina Hahn discusses her schedule and courses with Mr. King.

People—who are those people at your fingertips? At MHS they are seniors, underclassmen, faculty, and administration. People are the fundamental units, the “building blocks” of high school and life. The people of MHS determined all the events and activities that occurred.

Academically, students had some important decisions to make. Underclassmen had to choose which curriculum they would follow for the remainder of high school. Seniors spent a considerable amount of time deciding on their plans for after graduation. They chose either to obtain jobs in nearby communities, enter a college or university, or take more time to make the tough decision. Socially, students chose to participate in clubs, sports, and extracurricular activities. They decided which area they enjoyed the most and then concentrated their time on that area.

Faculty and administration also needed to make decisions concerning the students and school. They developed a curriculum and established criteria that were in the best interest of the students.

Throughout high school, the decisions of these people affected others around them and set standards for high school life. Seniors, underclassmen, faculty, and administration are those people who place the decisions at MHS—at your fingertips.

Seniors Seek Jobs

Seniors worked in many local restaurants, grocery stores, and farms after school. They learned that budgeting their time and handling money required great responsibility.

Fast food restaurants, such as the Middleburg Big T and Vinnies, employed seniors. Cooking the food, and waiting on customers proved that there was a lot of responsibilities involved with the job. Collecting the money and getting the food to the customers required concentration and team work. Some seniors found the work enjoyable, others found it tedious, especially when there was a mad rush of customers.

Grocery stores, such as IGA and Weis, hired several seniors. Seniors learned to run registers, bag groceries, and stock shelves. They realized that their demeanor was an important aspect of the job.

Farms employed seniors. Working on the farms allowed the release of excess energy built up inside the physically fit teenagers. Throwing hay bails and picking corn were muscle building tasks.

Seniors Choose Colleges

As the seniors high school years came to a close, many sought further education. Seniors took academically oriented classes to prepare for admission to college. Along with these classes, the seniors made other preparations.

With the aid of the new Discovery Computer System, students found information about colleges. The system also contributed by seeing if a particular college had a specific major. Another benefit of the computer was helping students decide on a major and the jobs, salary, and working conditions associated with it.

Seniors also met with college representatives. These representatives came from colleges, universities, and community institutions. During these visits, students received literature and asked questions about the particular school.

The computer system, and college representatives were a benefit to the students, and aided them in their choice of a college or university.

Business Curriculum Prepares Seniors for Job

Seniors prepared for jobs in the business field by taking office practice or business management courses.

The seniors in the office practice course asked one another questions. Throughout the year, these students learned how to file, use a calculator, use the micro-computer, and do problems on a typewriter. There was also an effort to get each student into a business setting in the community.

In addition to the office practice class, the business management class prepared seniors for working in the job market. Students learned the basic concepts of management, and advantages and disadvantages of both. Along with this, the teachers taught decision making processes for each organization. They also studied innovation of a proprietorship, manufacturing, the life cycle of a product, and the production process.

Eighth Grade Float Wins Second Place

The Class of '92 constructed a float for the 1987 homecoming parade on October 15th. The float, entitled "The First Thanksgiving", won second prize. Students on the float dressed like pilgrims and Indians and sat among cornshocks.

Advisors and members of the class met at the home of Amy McClellan to build and decorate the float. They worked on Saturday, October 10th from 10:00 A.M. to

Class of '92 Excels In Academic Achievement

Academics was a major part of the school year for all eighth graders. Eighth graders chose either academic, business education, vocational agriculture, or general for senior high. Three students participated in the Knowledge Master Open which was a team contest in all academic subjects. Another academic activity in which seven eighth graders participated was the Odyssey of the Mind.

Seventh Graders Adjust to High School Setting

The first day of school was an experience for seventh graders. Because they came from three elementary schools, they associated with strangers.

The curriculum involved unfamiliar subjects. The students adjusted with help from teachers and upperclassmen who assisted them in finding classes and familiarizing them with rules.

Magazine Sale Establishes Seventh Grade Treasury

Seventh grade students sold magazines beginning on October 7. The money collected went to their treasury. Seventh graders accumulated $1942.06.

The selection of mystery students added a bonus for the seventh grade students. Each mystery student received $5.00 for each sale brought in that day. Jeremy Church was the top seller of the magazine sale.

Seventh Graders Active in Sports

Throughout the year sports were available for seventh graders to enjoy. Seventh grade students participated in various junior high sports.

The school provided an intramural sports activity for seventh graders. The students learned sportsmanship, discipline, and team work. They also strengthened their skills and physical condition.

Administration Introduces Writing Program

Students must use important concepts, such as writing, not only during school years, but throughout their entire life. The district administrators realized the need for students to learn the necessary techniques to write a well structured paper. Because of this essential need, the administrators introduced a new program this year entitled "Writing Across the Curriculum." The administration devised the program to help students learn to write effectively.

The administration spent a lot of time arranging activities designed to inform teachers of some new writing techniques. Through these activities, which included workshops and discussion sessions, teachers learned new methods of writing which could help students improve their own writing skills. Selected teachers from departments including math, science, English, and business, attended approximately twelve workshop sessions held periodically throughout the previous year. As a result of this new program, administrators hoped to make students aware of the importance of writing not only in the English department, but also in all other departments.

The high school administrators made a major change concerning the start of the school day by eliminating the homeroom period. Administrators based their decision on the idea that from the time the students entered the school building until the students left, the time should be as productive as possible.

Before making the decision the administrators considered the length of the homeroom period and also the ways students spent the time. In previous years, the homeroom period lasted sixteen minutes. The students listened to morning announcements for approximately five minutes and the remainder of the time students sat in homeroom completing last minute assignments or just enjoying the free time. The administration felt the time involved would be more beneficial to the students if they were in first period class rather than in homeroom. Thus the first period class could begin immediately after the morning announcements.

The elimination of the homeroom period caused both positive and negative effects. The elimination allowed more time to first period classes, while at the same time caused problems for secretaries with regard to the attendance cards. However, overall the students and faculty adapted quite well to the change.

Administration Endorses Writing Across the Curriculum

During the summer of 1986, teachers from all the buildings in the Mid-West district participated in a summer seminar on teaching writing in all curriculum areas. Three of the teachers were from Middleburg High School, Mrs. Justice, Mr. Moyer, and Mr. Graybill. The Middleburg High School administrators introduced the Writing Across the Curriculum program to faculty members during the 1986-1987 school year. Bimonthly meetings, which organized an inservice for all Mid-West faculty members, focused on prewriting activities that enhanced learning in content areas. That year Mr. Lawson, Mrs. Burns, and Miss Towsey became involved with the program, and in February they had their first full day of inservice.

The 1987-1988 school year brought on new concepts for the Writing Across the Curriculum program. Mrs. Justice and Mr. Lawson organized bimonthly meetings which focused on specific content areas. Separate content areas met during Activity A and on Day 3, period 11, where they discussed possible writing applications within that content area. Faculty members submitted samples during these meetings to serve as resources for faculty members. With this program, designed to enhance a students writing ability, administrators hoped to expose the students to writing in every field.

Graduation Procession Takes On Formal Role

Members of the Senior Class were not the only persons donning robes and mortar boards for the commencement exercises. For the past two years, members of the faculty and administration have also worn typical academic garb.

Members of the Board of School Directors were firmly committed to all faculty members attending the commencement program; therefore, attendance at the graduation ceremonies served as an in-service program. In addition to attendance the Board of School Directors underwrote the rental fees for the academic trappings.

Aside from attending the commencement program, faculty members were responsible for preparation of the commencement exercises. Committees had to deal with publicity, awards, speeches, music and diploma preparation. A memorable commencement program depended on the diligence of the faculty committees.

Cooks, Janitors, and Busdrivers Essential to School Routine

The Middleburg High School's cafeteria staff, under the direction of Mrs. Phyllis Houtz, prepared a balanced lunch for the students and the staff approximately one hundred seventy-seven days a year. During the 1987-1988 school year, lunches cost students $1.00 and staff members $1.50 or one could opt to buy individual food items at an a la carte price. If a person did not wish to buy the meal on the menu, one could make a salad from the salad bar. Administrators added a new item, ice cream, to the menu this school year. Students could purchase ice cream during the last ten minutes of their lunch period for thirty cents.

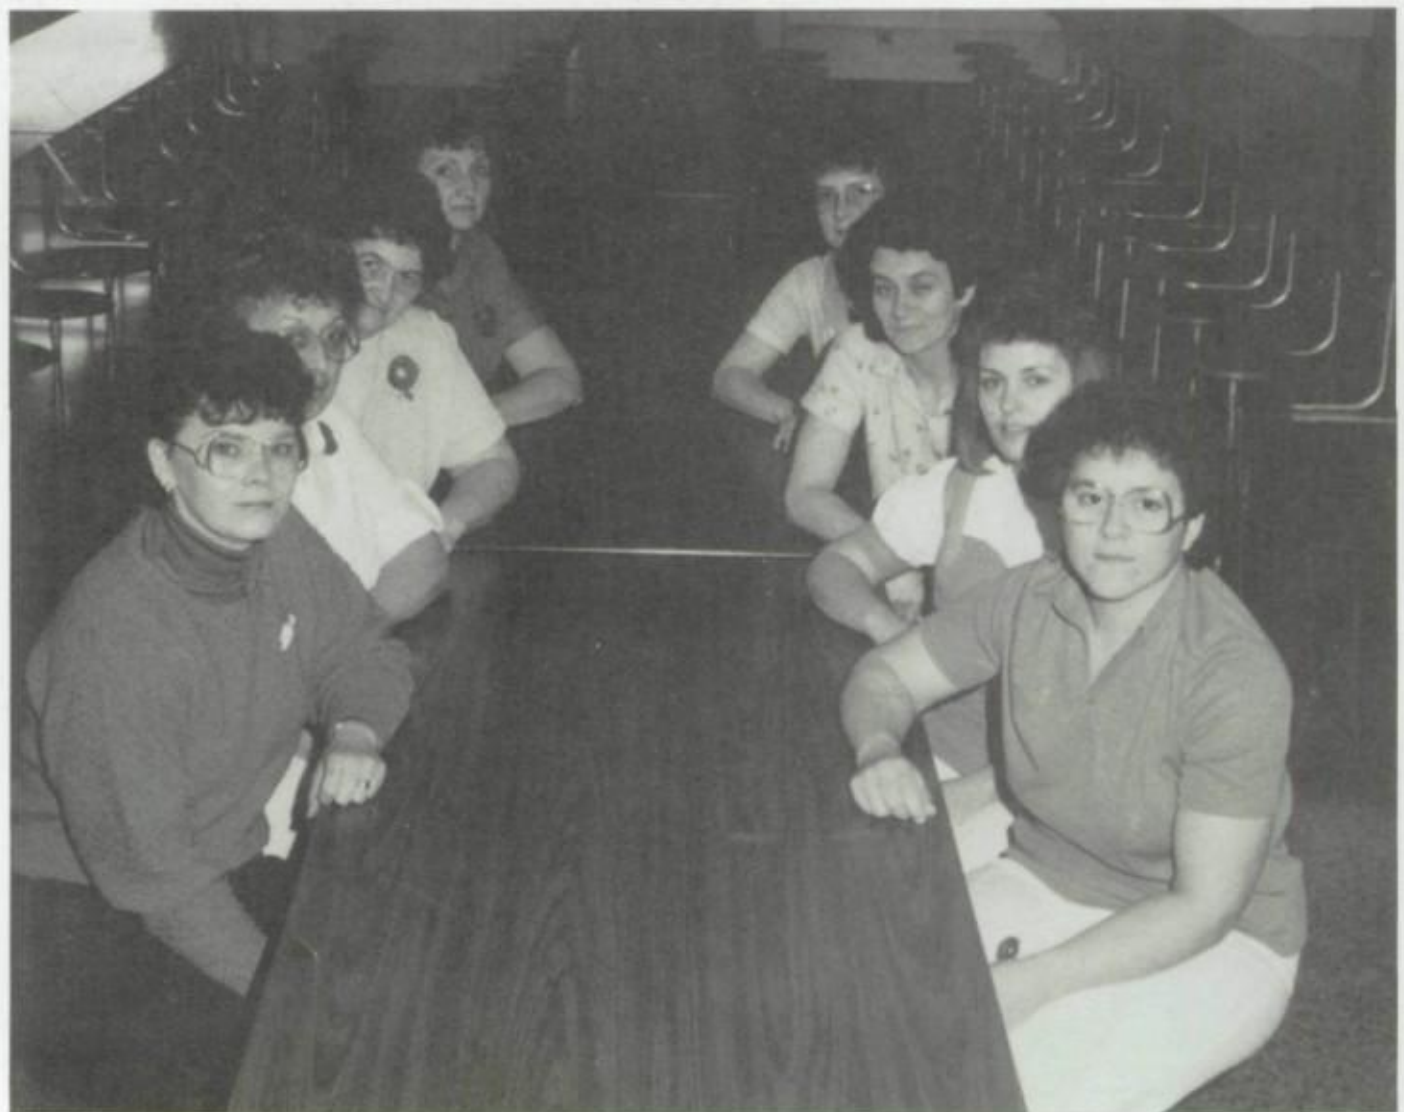

The custodial staff played a key role in keeping the school and the school grounds clean and free of liter. The custodians' jobs included sweeping the classroom floors, washing the blackboards, cleaning the erasers, and emptying the waste paper cans daily.

The busdrivers transported over three-fourths of the student body to and from school. Some busdrivers began to pick up students as early as 7:00 a.m. in order to arrive at the high school before 7:50 a.m. After they transported the students to the high school, they began another run to pick up the elementary school students. At approximately 2:35 p.m. the buses arrived at the high school once again and lined up in their proper positions on the drive in front of the school. At 2:50 p.m. the buses left the high school and reversed their morning runs.

ACADEMICS

Academics-at your fingertips. Academics are the foundation of high school and MHS offers a wide variety of courses for students to choose. In seventh and eighth grade, all students have basically the same courses, but in ninth grade students have a choice. They may select either academic, agriculture, business, or general courses.

The academic curriculum provides the students with a strong background of courses for postsecondary study. The business curriculum trains students for careers in office work and other business-related occupations. The general field of study offers a basic education for students who are unsure of their future plans. The vocational agriculture curriculum prepares students for careers in the agricultural field.

All of these courses provide students with an educational background which is-at your fingertips.

National Honor Society

Inducts New Members

On May 12, 1987, the National Honor Society inducted twenty new members, sixteen juniors and four seniors, to bring the total membership to sixteen juniors and eighteen seniors. To be a member of the National Honor Society one had to maintain at least a ninety grade point average, show leadership qualities, and demonstrate service toward the community.

The National Honor Society, under the guidance of Mr. Stanley Sheaffer, held meetings periodically throughout the 1987-1988 school year to discuss trips and fund raisers. In September, members took orders before the start of school and during the lunch periods for seven different items of school clothing, including Middies jackets, sweatshirts, and sweatpants. In January, members also sold ham sandwiches to help defray the cost of their two day trip. In March, the group sold daffodils for the American Cancer Society as part of a national fund raising campaign.

Members of the National Honor Society participated in service activities throughout the school year. Members took part in the teacher-for-a-day program. On this designated day, members traveled to Penns Creek, Perry West Perry, or Middleburg Elementary School and assisted the teacher in teaching the students. They performed this task by reading stories to the students, helping them with their math problems, and teaching a reading group. National Honor Society members also provided a tutoring service for students at MHS who had problems in certain areas.

Health Careers Club

Members Sponsor Service Project

Students planning health careers gathered in room 108 during the D activity period participating in the Health Careers Club. During the meetings, members discussed new ideas in the medical fields and medical careers. Guest speakers representing the Air Force and the American Cancer Society came to inform members about opportunities the health field has to offer.

During the 1987-1988 school year, under advisors Mrs. Jesse Stock and Mrs. Marjorie Wright, members prompted new activities including the "How to Quit Chewing Tobacco and Smoking Campaign". On November 3, 1987, members presented an assembly as part of this campaign. Dr. Jeffrey Bell, from Dental Health Associates, presented a slide show to the student body and discussed the dangers in chewing smokeless tobacco. This campaign continued throughout the school year. Members also participated in the "Great American Smoke-Out". This campaign included a balloon release on November 19, 1987. The student body and faculty became involved by purchasing a balloon for one cent. After everybody purchased their balloons, they released them simultaneously. All proceeds from this project went to the American Cancer Society.

In the spring, the Health Careers Club sponsored the annual bloodmobile at MHS. Students age seventeen or older and staff members were eligible to donate blood. Members of the club helped at this bloodmobile as well as others held throughout the community. Their jobs included labeling the blood, typing, and preparing refreshments.

FBLA Members Learn About Business World

Middleburg High School's FBLA, Future Business Leaders of America, met every activity period D during the 1987-1988 school year for preparation in areas such as typing, shorthand, and clerical duties. Under advisor Lewis Ballantine, members prepared for the district and state competitions. Each year at the district competition, members competed in the area of their choice. Some members took bookkeeping tests while others tested their speed and accuracy by taking a typing test. If a member received first or second place in district competition, they moved on to the state competition held in Lancaster.

On November 17, 1987, members attended the district meeting held at New Berlin. At the meeting they discussed the topic, "What Makes a Good FBLA Officer?" and listened to a speaker from the Red Cross.

During regular meetings, the members also planned ways to spend the profit they made from their fund raiser. In November, members sold wrapping paper to help defray the cost of traveling to competitions, state and national dues, and the purchase of FBLA jackets for each of the members. They also used a portion of the profit obtained from selling the wrapping paper for a trip to Hershey Park at the end of the school year.

FHA Promotes Community Services

The Middleburg High School Future Homemakers of America organization, headed by Mrs. Sharon Fisher and Mrs. Annette Goodling, promoted community services. Each year through activities such as attending nursing homes, helping at local schools, and donating to charities, the chapter makes contributions to the community.

During the 1987-1988 school year, the chapter decided to focus the year on crime prevention. As a result of this decision, the chapter held fundraisers such as selling decorative Christmas ornaments, to raise money to purchase a McGruff the Crime Dog costume. The FHA presented the costume to the Middleburg Police Department. The department used the costume to present programs to elementary schools. The program helped to make young children aware of crime and some of the actions they can take to prevent crime.

Members of the FHA also contributed their time, one day a week, to the local pre-school held at the Middleburg Emmanuel Lutheran Church. The members assisted the pre-schoolers in making crafts, helped to entertain the children, and also distributed snack foods.

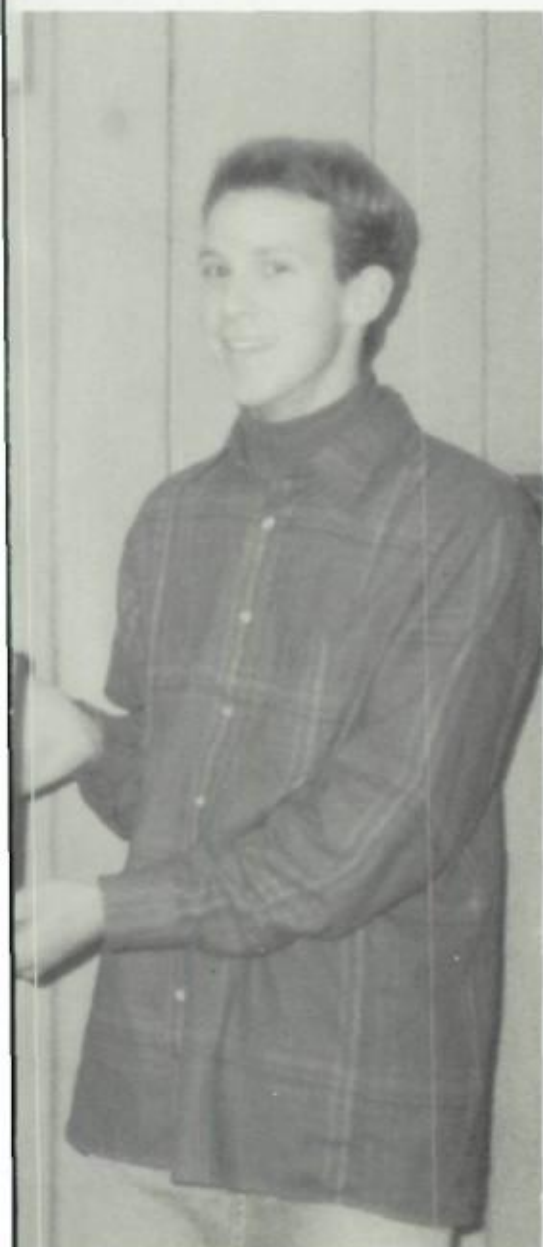

Throughout the school year, members participated in both local and national meetings. Six members traveled to Albany, New York to take part in the National FHA meeting. While at the meeting members attended workshops dealing with drug abuse. They also met with national officers and learned new leadership skills. The chapter also participated in local rallies held throughout the year. Topics discussed at the local rallies included child and family development.

FFA Receives

National Award Emblem

With seventy members, the Middleburg High School Future Farmers of America held fundraisers, traveled on trips, and competed in competitions throughout the 1987-1988 school year. The FFA trained young members to be active citizens and leaders throughout the community. The organization also stressed the important qualities of leadership and responsibility.

Two of the fundraisers sponsored by the FFA included the apple cider sale and the citrus fruit sale. The cider sale lasted throughout the month of October. Members received fruit orders during November and delivered the fruit in December. Profits from the fundraisers helped defray the costs of activities, such as trips and tours, which members participated in throughout the year.

One of the activities included a trip to the Sixtieth National FFA Convention held in Kansas City, Missouri. Six members from the Middleburg FFA chapter attended the three-day convention. The convention, one of the world's largest annual student gatherings, attracted approximately 22,000 FFA members from the fifty states, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. During the convention, the chapter received the prestigious Bronze National Chapter Award Emblem. The emblem signified the Middleburg Chapter as being instrumental in helping young men and women shape their lives and futures in the field of agriculture. While attending the convention members participated in leadership training workshops and toured Kansas City agricultural businesses and the Purina Research farm.

Math, Science Courses Meet Student Needs

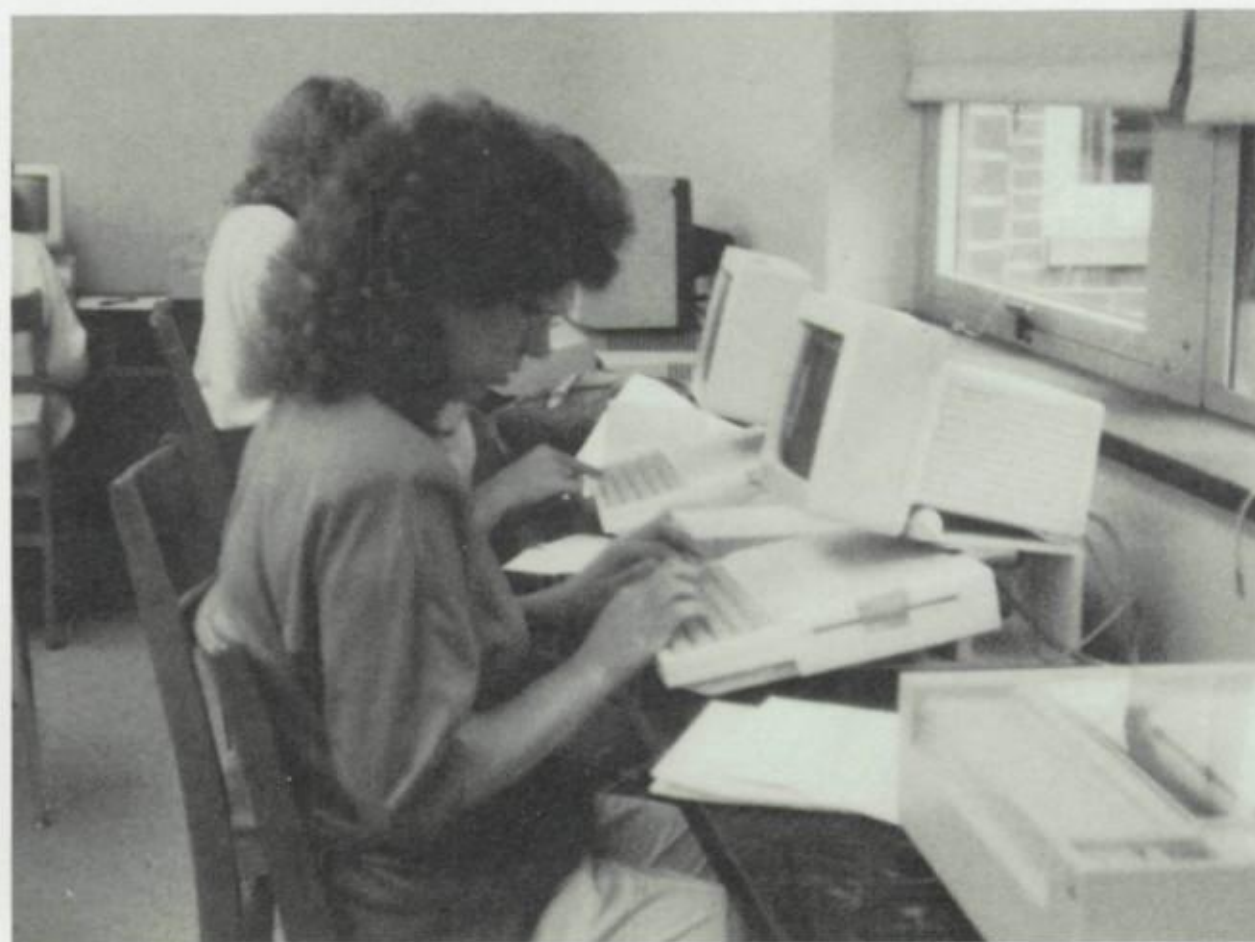

The math department made new additions to the curriculum during the 1987-88 school year. The math teachers taught the new Computer Science III course which gave students who already completed Computer Science I and Computer Science II a greater learning depth of the Pascal language and the many functions of the computer. The Guidance Department scheduled classes which consisted of students in Computer Science I, II, and III. Scheduling mixed classes together aided the newcomers to the course with help from the students who previously completed the courses.

The math department also added a new teacher to the staff. Mr. Gordon Lee joined the staff in September. Mr. Lee taught business math, general math, and Algebra I.

The science department provided each student with knowledge in both physical and biological science. The main goals stressed by each science teacher were to develop a better understanding of the chemical aspects of living things as they pertain to good health, production of food, respiration, and heredity, and to recognize the relationships of science and technology to our daily lives.

Students who completed the basic science courses had opportunities to study more advanced courses including advanced biology, advanced chemistry, and physics. Students who took these courses had a better understanding of advancements in science.

Both the math and science departments incorporated the new policy of writing across the curriculum. The math teachers increased the number of short answer essays on tests. The members of the science department stressed the importance of writing in laboratory write-ups, research papers, homework, reports, and an increased amount of essay questions on tests.

Languages, Social Studies Bridge Gap in Understanding World Cultures

Courses ranging from the seventh grade geography classes to the senior sociology classes covered a wide spectrum of social problems and issues. Issues that included the importance of child development and parenting to the role of the US in modern world politics.

Students in seventh and eighth grades focused on the comparison of world cultures, including geography and its influence on the development of the nations of the world. During the fall semester

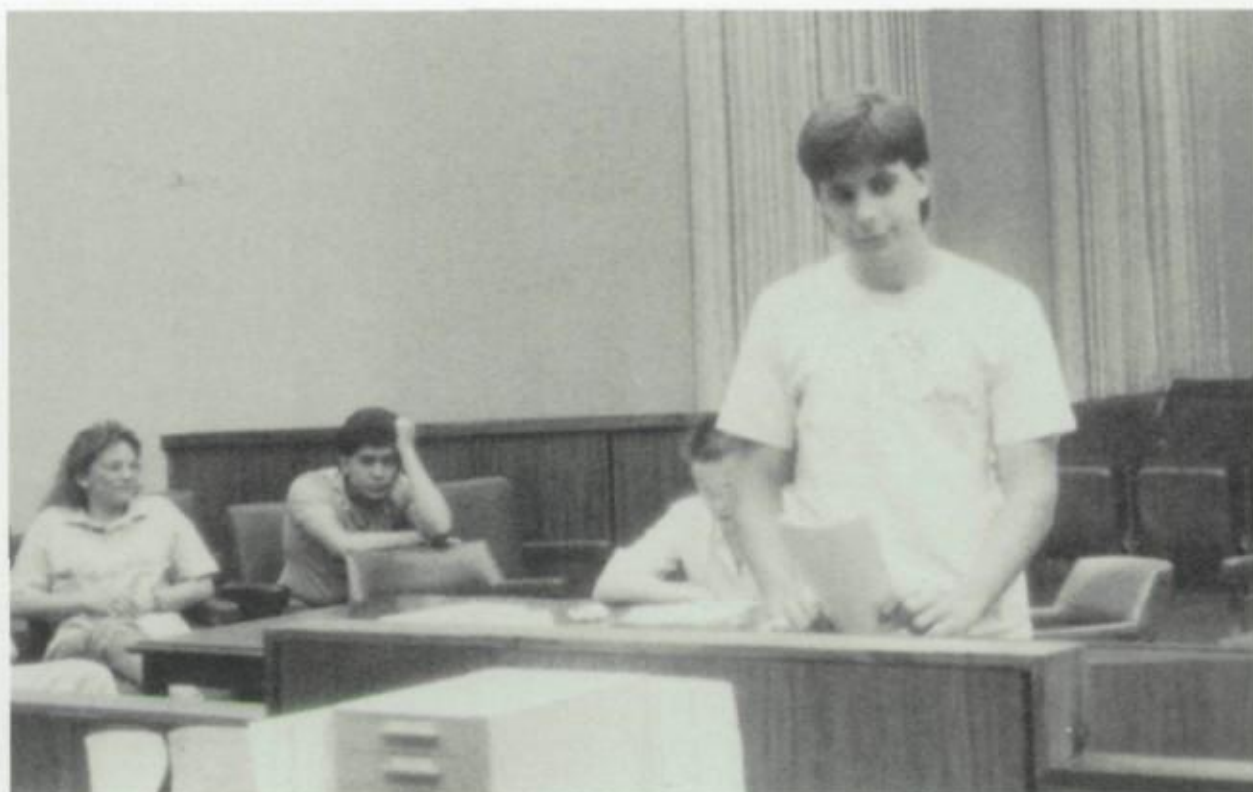

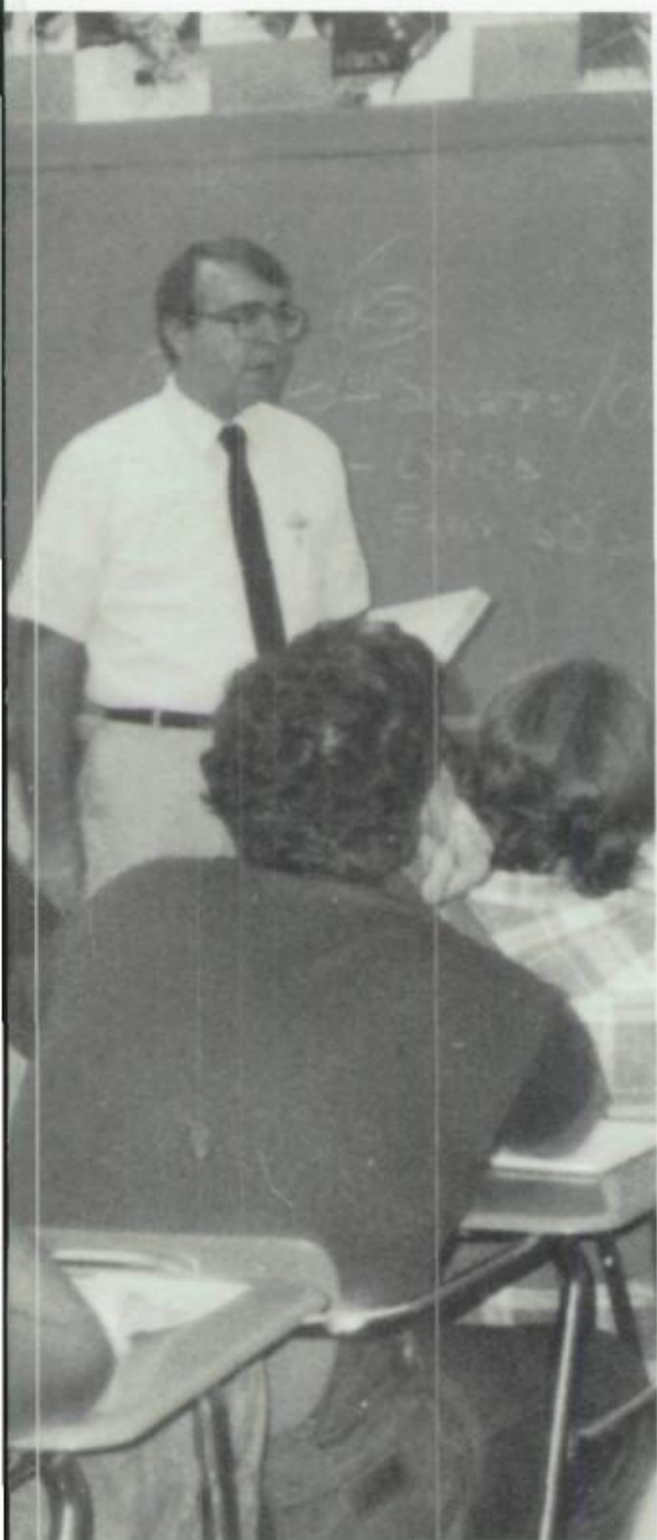

Mr. Jun Oishi, the exchange teacher from Japan, lectured many classes concerning the culture and customs of the Japanese.

Ninth grade students concentrated on the history of Pennsylvania, civics and government. Included in the course was a unit on the traditions of Pennsylvania farming, including a video on "butchering".

Tenth grade history class, while studying politics and warfare, also tried to emphasize social history and the way in which ordinary people live. Teaching units included immigration to America, ways of work in the late 19th century, the Victorian age and the lifestyle of the '20's and '60's. In addition to the textbook, instruction included discussion, reports, slides, videos, and at least one research paper.

Whether it was "Buenos Dias" or "Guten Morgen" seventh graders experienced basic pronunciation concepts in the foreign language classes. Half the seventh graders studied Spanish during the first semester while the remaining seventh graders studied German. During the second semester, students switched classes so that all students received the same basic instruction. Students in seventh grade studied both languages for one semester so that they could make an intelligent choice as to the language they wished to study in grades eight, nine, and ten.

Ninth grade marked the first in-depth look at the grammatical structure of the two modern foreign languages. Along with grammar, students studied culture through the use of movies, videos, and guest speakers; and students also broadened their appreciation of the foreign cultures by concentrating on the current events of the European and Hispanic countries.

Identifying the modern foreign language as a useful skill in the career-minded student was an ever present objective of the foreign language department. Helping students to see the usefulness of the spoken language in the health service, diplomatic and transportation fields was foremost in the presentation of the Spanish and German teachers.

Grammar studies, a regular part of the curriculum throughout high school, helped most Middleburg students communicate better in writing and speech.

Students received standard courses in seventh through tenth grades, however, eleventh and twelfth graders had many electives from which to choose. The majority of juniors chose Advanced Grammar and American Literature. Favorites among seniors were Oral Communications and Short Story. The improvement of English skills helped students prepare for life after school.

Curricula Focus on Future Needs of Students

The home economics department prepared students for future lifestyles. After leaving home, students must be familiar with basic knowledge concerning consumer buying, preparing nutritional foods, child development, and child care. The home economics department prepared students with useful information concerning ways of dealing with each situation.

The home economics department offered elective courses to those students interested in learning skills in consumer buying and preparing foods. Single Living, a course designed to teach students skills needed to live on his or her own, covered topics intended to enable the student to function as an adult.

The department also stressed information concerning nutrition and food preparation. Foods I, a new course offered this year, provided students with the latest information in foods and nutrition. Throughout the course students gained useful information concerning microwave cooking, making wise consumer choices, menu planning and food preparation. Through courses like Foods I and Single Living, the home economics department met its primary goal, to prepare students for future lifestyles.

The vocational agriculture curriculum, designed for those students interested in agriculture or conservation related areas, emphasized the important qualities of leadership, citizenship, and cooperation. Each student enrolled in this curriculum met several requirements. All students must be a member of the Future Farmers of America. Both vocational agriculture and FFA work together to help students acquire necessary leadership skills and assume responsibility. Students must also complete a project which may include raising an animal, having a wildlife or forestry project, or maintaining a skills and task book, which includes mainly mechanical work. The project chosen depended on the students particular area of interest.

The vocational agriculture curriculum offered students a wide range of activities from which they could study. Freshmen vocational agriculture students studied an essential introductory course in agricultural science and related agricultural studies, such as plant and animal studies. The sophomore students studied much of the same subjects as the previous year, only to a more advanced level. The junior agricultural class, built on the skills learned from the previous two years, stressed skills in agricultural mechanics, including masonry skills, building construction, gasoline and diesel engine repairs. The senior agriculture class continued studying skills built in the three prior years. Areas studied in depth included agricultural business and financial management.

Teachers of the business department hoped to educate the students and develop business skills which would make the students employable immediately after graduating from high school. The department stressed learning by providing students with actual hands on experience.

The business curriculum offered students elective courses which would provide experience in all areas of business related occupations. The Office Practice course covered every possible activity and procedure the normal beginning clerical worker and secretary would encounter in the daily office routine. The course taught students useful skills in filing, telephone techniques, and operating business machines. The students practiced this useful information by assisting teachers throughout the year. The students helped teachers by completing duties such as typing tests and worksheets and duplicating papers. The business department also hoped to obtain an office related job at a local business and allow every Office Practice student to leave the school and enter into the actual business setting. Through the courses offered, the business department provided students with useful business related skills.

The industrial arts department provided an opportunity for all students to become aware of the uses of industrial materials in our society, such as wood and metals, throughout the home and the work area. The department also stressed the importance of safety and responsibility while working in the industrial arts shop.

The industrial arts curriculum offered courses ranging from maintenance and home repairs to the popular mechanical drawing course. Mechanical drawing, an introductory course in technical drawing, allowed students to design plans taken from a textbook. The students learned to draw the plans to scale with correct dimensions on front, sides, and top views. If under a real industrial situation, the machine shop could receive the plans and transpose them from the paper into the actual piece of equipment.

MHS Students Learn to Appreciate Music and Art

Music education provided knowledge of music, music reading, musical styles, and an appreciation for the arts and music in our cultures. Students participated in classroom activities which gave them an opportunity to perform as part of a group and developed self-esteem for their work and performance.

Seventh and eighth grades studied music. Seventh grade students took an indepth look at instruments, singing, conducting, and rhythm. Eighth grade students studied a stereo unit, jazz, and rock and roll. Both grades used guitars, to study and to learn to play.

Advanced Music class provided enlightenment for students who wished a further and more in-depth look at music. Advanced Music students studied written and oral theory, conducting, writing music, and music history.

Art education provided the student with a chance to express their artistic desires and abilities. It also provided a chance to develop visual senses and to integrate other areas of learning in visual form. Art students also displayed their work before friends and family in the art show, held in conjunction with the spring chorus concert.

ACTIVITIES

Activities-at your fingertips. During high school many students chose to become involved in one or more club activities. Through these activities, students gained new opportunities, developed new hobbies, met new friends, and shared memorable experiences.

Students chose from a wide variety of interesting activities. Most of these activities met once every one or two cycles. However, band, chorus, newspaper, and yearbook met during regular class time. Worth .50 credits, these activities counted towards the students' overall credits.

Some students showed their leadership abilities by participating in service organizations. Student Council, Key Club, and SADD allowed the students to improve the school and community.

Other students chose interest activities. Some decided to show their artistic abilities through stage band, ensemble, theater arts, and poster club. Sport-oriented activities included ski club, tennis, soccer, and Varsity Club. Still others-back-gammon, chess club, and magic club provided more learning experiences for the students.

At MHS students found that many different types of activities were-at your fingertips.

Senior High Chorus Focuses on Christmas Tunes

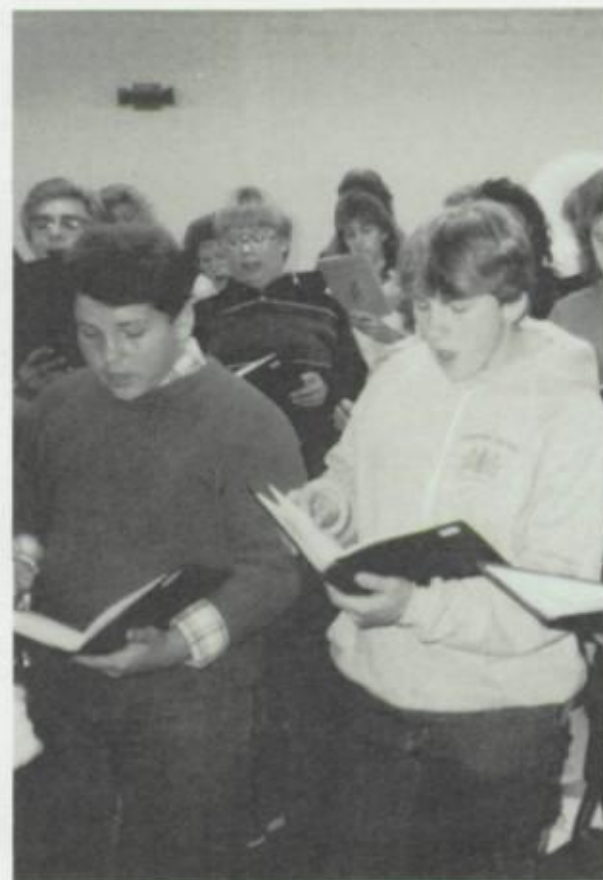

On December 13 the entire senior high chorus presented a winter concert. "Glory to God", "Christmas Comes Anew!", "Sing Hosanna!", "Kyrie", and "Masters in This Hall" were the songs that the whole chorus sang. Valerie Apple was the accompanist on the piano. The female members in the chorus sang "Carol of the Children" with Lance Clark playing the piano. To close the program the senior high chorus and band and the junior high chorus and band performed "We Three Kings and All That Jazz."

Mrs. Coleen Renshaw directed the chorus throughout the year. The senior high chorus practiced three days each cycle. The members worked on varying volumes, balancing the sound, and enunciating clearly.

To obtain funds for a trip, the senior high chorus sold hoagies, cheese and sausage, and bows. The Music Boosters organized the fundraiser and the trip. The officers of the senior high chorus were Valerie Apple, president; Diane Angstadt, vice president; Tim Lewis, secretary; and Wendy Dauberman, treasurer. In the spring, the senior high chorus and the senior high band traveled to a dinner theatre for a one day trip.

Student Council Aims Activities at Student Interests

The student council held a number of events this year to benefit the students. On October 12-17, the student council organized a dress-up week. The activities included a College Sweatshirt Day on Monday, Blue and Gold Day on Tuesday, Sunglasses and Tie Day on Wednesday, Inside Out Day on Thursday, and Look Your Best Day on Friday. The majority of the students participated in these activities.

Following dress-up week, the student council sponsored the homecoming events, including a parade, an assembly, and a dance. After homecoming, the council held a Halloween dress-up day for the student body.

On December 15, the student body chose representatives from each class to be on the Snow Court. The student council introduced the court at the Snow Dance on December 18 in the school cafeteria. To conclude the dance, the council announced the Snow Queen and Snow Princess.

The student council held two fundraisers to finance their projects. The council sold Christmas stockings for $1.25 during lunch periods. On Friday, December 18, the members distributed the candy-filled stockings to the students who purchased them. For Valentine's Day, students could order red, white, or pink carnations from the student council for $1.25.

Jello Wrestling Attracts Capacity Crowd

Jello wrestling started off the Varsity Club's fundraisers. The Varsity Club, advised by Mr. Matthew Soto, conducted the jello wrestling event on November 16. Three teachers and 37 students enthusiastically entertained the audience by wrestling in the cold, green jello.

For the first match Mr. Matthew Soto and Mr. Charles Volchansky wrestled Duane Schmoyer and Matt Ferster. The rivalry between sisters enhanced the bout with Suzanne Hassinger and Diane Wentzel against Sheri Hassinger and Debra Wentzel. After intermission Mr. Ralph Varner courageously entered the ring with Dan Price to wrestle Steve Schenck and Randy Klose. To conclude the event, the Varsity Club featured a main event. Mike Astick and Brett Shamory teamed up as "Ax and Smash" to battle John "the Barber" Jones and Brad "the Dragon" Wyland. The jello wrestling yielded roughly 300 dollars for the Varsity Club treasury.

In addition to jello wrestling, the annual Varsity Club Run also contributed as a major fundraiser. The Varsity Club's fundraisers provided the money to purchase varsity jackets for deserving athletes.

SADD Club Discourages Drinking, Driving

SADD, Theatre Arts, and the German Club were active clubs in school. SADD members kept busy trying to persuade students not to drink and drive. The members displayed posters in the halls and presented assemblies that discouraged drinking and driving. In the fall four members and Mr. Ralph Varner, the advisor, represented the MHS SADD program at a statewide SADD convention. The convention took place at the Elks Country club in Boalsburg, PA. For a fundraiser, SADD members placed pen and pencil machines in the cafeteria.

Theatre Arts started the year with its members doing improvisations and pantomimes in front of the other members during the activity periods. In the spring Theatre Arts became active in assisting with the production of the musical, "Annie".

On December 23 Theatre Arts presented the Christmas assembly for the student body. Greg Amey, Daniel Bruno, Pamela Hapes, Abe Hughes, Kathie Kuhns, Shelly Pyle, and Elizabeth Walter acted in the play, "A Walk in the Park". Shelly Pyle wrote it and Greg Amey directed it.

German Club members decorated a float for the homecoming parade. The float's theme focused on the bicentennial. Wendy Hackenberg posed as Betsy Ross sewing the American flag. Robert Shirk walked on stilts dressed as Uncle Sam.

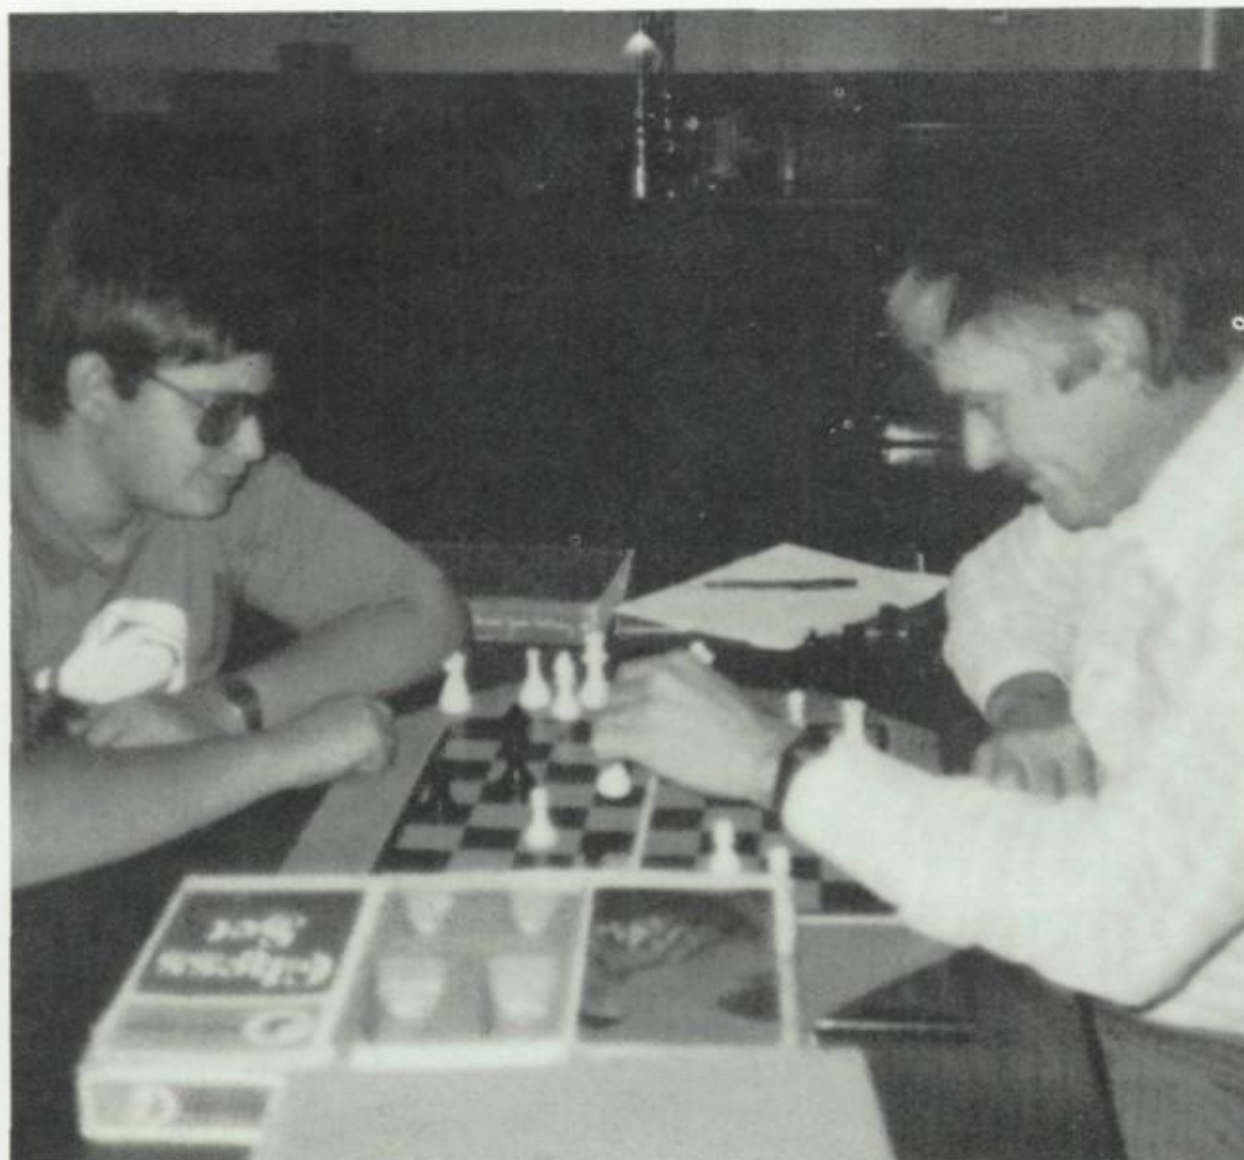

German Club members sold cookies and candy to augment their treasury. For an Octoberfest they traveled to McGee's Hotel in Bloomsburg, PA. The members enjoyed a German meal at the Octoberfest. As a community service, the German Club collected canned goods, blankets, toys, and clothing for underprivileged people.

Students' Interests Demand Various Activity Offerings

Days three and four, activity periods provided the opportunity for organizations to meet. Activity periods for clubs that dealt with intellectual, athletic, or game skills enabled students to practice their abilities. Such clubs were computer, math, ski, tennis, softball, backgammon, and chess.

In computer club, advised by Miss Joyce Towsey, the members had to design simple graphics and eventually had to write an arcade game. In addition, the school offered a math club to junior high students to help improve their math skills. During the activity period the members worked on logic problems.

The advisor of the math club was Miss Suellen Smith.

In the winter, the ski club, along with Mrs. Alice Justice, planned six skiing excursions. Five trips were to Ski Saw Mill in Morris, PA. To defray the transportation costs, the members sold ham sandwiches.

Throughout the school year, members of the softball and tennis clubs practiced their respective sports when the weather was suitable. The activity period gave members the chance to practice and improve their athletic abilities. In chess club and backgammon club, members challenged other members in game skills. They played in a tournament fashion.

Key Club Works To Serve Community

The MHS Key Club placed major emphasis on service to the community and also sponsored many activities for the school this year. Teacher Appreciation was on the top of the agenda. Members of the club treated the faculty with coffee, tea, and donuts on the half day of school, November 11.

Key Club for the first time sponsored a Friday the 13th dance to benefit UNICEF. The dance took place in the cafeteria. The Queen of Hearts dance was also a big success for students. The dance also took place in the cafeteria and last year's royalty, David Hackenberg and Michele Matsko, crowned the new King and Queen of Hearts mid-way through the evening. The proceeds went to the American Heart Foundation.

Key Club served the community by visiting the Selinsgrove Center to share in the annual Christmas party. Also at Christmas time, the Key Club collected food to give to area churches to be distributed to needy families. Key Club helped serve at the pancake and sausage breakfast held at the Middleburg Fire Hall sponsored by the Kiwanis.

A new advisor supervised the Key Club this year. Miss Suellen Smith took over the responsibility.

Junior High Band, Chorus Harmonize Annual Concert

The junior high band and chorus members performed at the annual Christmas concert on December 13 and the spring concert on May 9. Both the choral group and the band met every week to prepare for the concerts.

The junior high chorus met under the direction of Mrs. Coleen Renshaw. They vocalized traditional holiday songs including "Happy Holidays", "We Three Kings and All That Jazz", and others at the Christmas concert.

The junior high band perfected their talents under the supervision of Miss Kathy Levan. They entertained the audience of the Christmas concert with the music "Jingle Bells Parade", "A Fantasy on Chester", "Waltz of the Flowers", and "Trepek (Russian Dance)".

Both the junior high band and chorus sold cheese and sausage and Christmas bows in the fall in order to finance a field trip in the spring.

Stage Band Participates in Two Concerts

The stage band provided a variety of styles of music in its two concerts held in the spring, including rock and jazz music. Mr. Renshaw held tryouts in order to select stage band members. He chose the best instrumentalists for each section. The members had to excel in a variety of styles of rhythm. Stage band members practiced during activities B and D.

On March 15, the stage band had its debut performance at the spring band concert, playing "Saint Louis Blues", "Memory", and "In the Mood" to entertain the audience. The band pops concert on May 13 was the final concert in which the stage band participated. The performance included "The Final Countdown" and "I Just Can't Stop Loving You".

Talented Musicians Participate in SVB, District Band

On November 16, members of the senior high band traveled to Milton High School for Susquehanna Valley Band auditions. Twenty-seven members represented MHS on January 22-23 at the Selinsgrove Middle School. Instrumentalists from Middleburg, Mifflinburg, Milton, Selinsgrove, Shikellamy, and West Snyder senior high bands competed for placements in SVB. Mr. Renshaw chose nineteen junior high band members to participate.

On November 22, band members traveled to Williamsport for District Band auditions. Tryouts included each instrumentalists skills in sight reading, scales, technique, tone, interpretation, rhythm, intonation, dynamics, and articulation. Seven members advanced to District Band held on January 27-30 in Hughesville.

Ensemble Participates In Winter, Spring Concerts

"Silent Night", "Hallelu", and "Gloria" were the three songs that the ensemble presented at the Christmas concert on December 13. On June 3, the ensemble sang selections of Broadway music during the spring-pops concert.

Throughout the year the ensemble successfully continued to serve the community. The members enjoyed Christmas caroling during the holiday season. In the spring the ensemble traveled to area churches and sang as a part of the morning worship services.

On October 25, fourteen chorus members auditioned at Williamsport Area High School for a place in the District Chorus. Four members earned a place in this selective group. Valerie Apple auditioned with three others to be the accompanist.

Newspaper Staff Learns Fundamentals of Journalism

Learning journalism techniques and fundamentals occupied the first month of the school year for the newspaper staff. Each staff member made a choice on which section he or she desired to work. Mrs. Hoffman the advisor had the final decision.

Activities, classes, news, and sports sections required staff members with special writing skills. Staff members with creativity and neatness excelled in the paste-up section. Each section had an editor. Along with the editors were two managing editors that distributed assignments and later edited the papers.

In February, the newspaper and yearbook staffs traded places. The seniors produced the Monitor Jr., while the juniors became the yearbook staff.

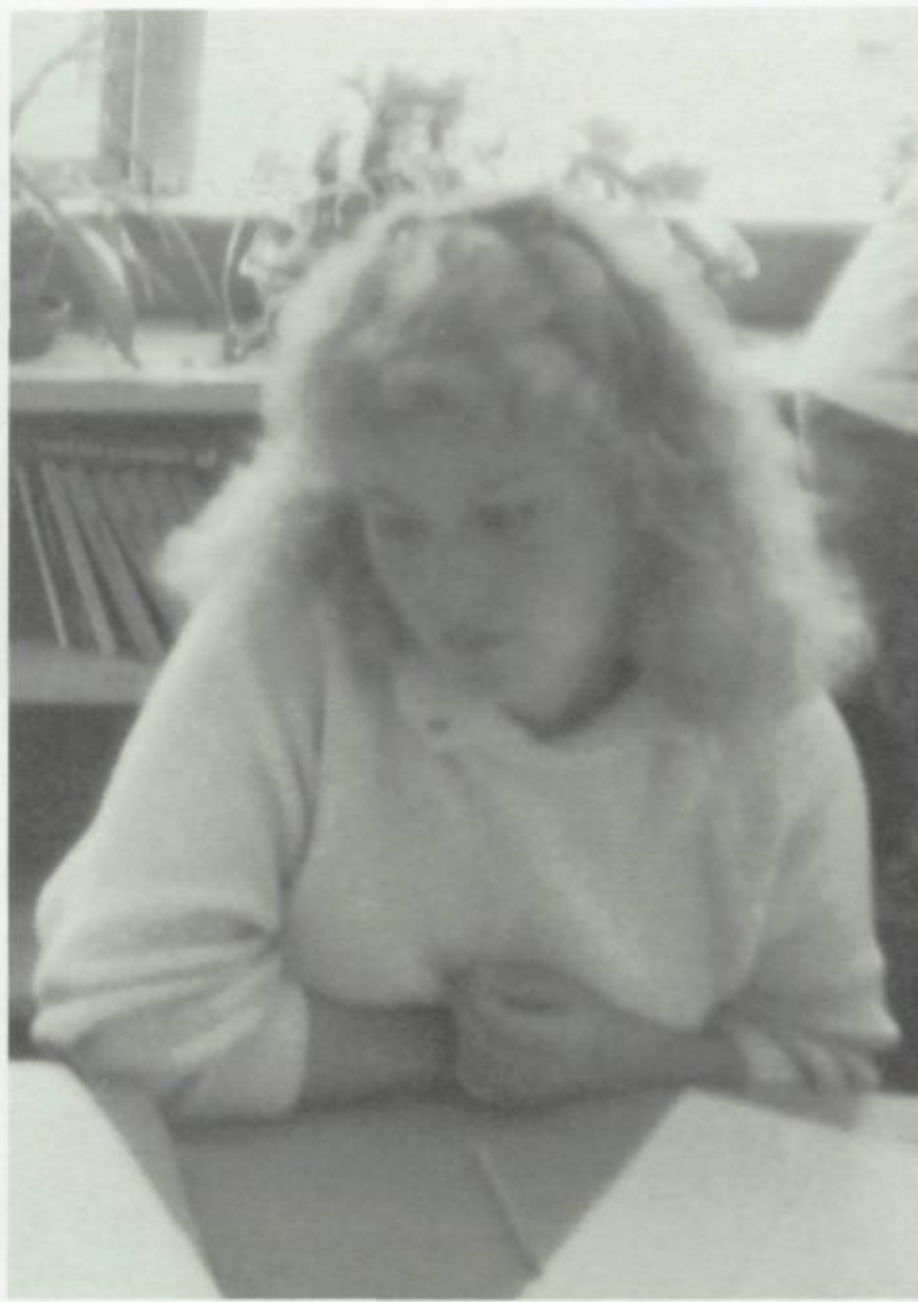

Monitor Staff Adopts Larger Book

Through the majority of the 1987-88 school year, the Monitor staff put the concepts they learned as the junior newspaper staff to use. Although Mrs. Hoffman taught them everything from the terms, such as crop and bleed, to the many techniques used to write copy and draw layouts, the process was a tedious and challenging experience.

Due to successful ad and sales campaigns conducted in the spring and fall of 1987, the staff was able to add twelve pages to the Monitor. They also used different layout designs including shadow-boxed and bled pictures. Another added touch to the 1988 yearbook included the seniors' personal biographies.

Band Participates in Summer, Fall Parades

Through the course of the year, the MHS Senior Band participated in a number of musical events. In July, the band took part in the Dutch Days Parade in Richfield playing "Freedom". The band also performed in the Middleburg parade in August.

On December 13, the band held a winter concert featuring Christmas tunes "A Norwegian Christmas Overture" and "Sleigh Ride". At the spring concert in March, the band performed "Festivo", "Alla Barocco", and "Big River". At the conclusion of the year, the band made its last performance in the Memorial Day Parade at Middleburg.

Although the majority of the band's time involved preparing for parades and concerts, the band also held a number of fund-raising activities. Members sold hoagies prepared by the band members in September, cheese and sausage in October, and Christmas bows in December to help defray the cost of a one-day band trip taken in the spring.

Bandfront Performs With Precision

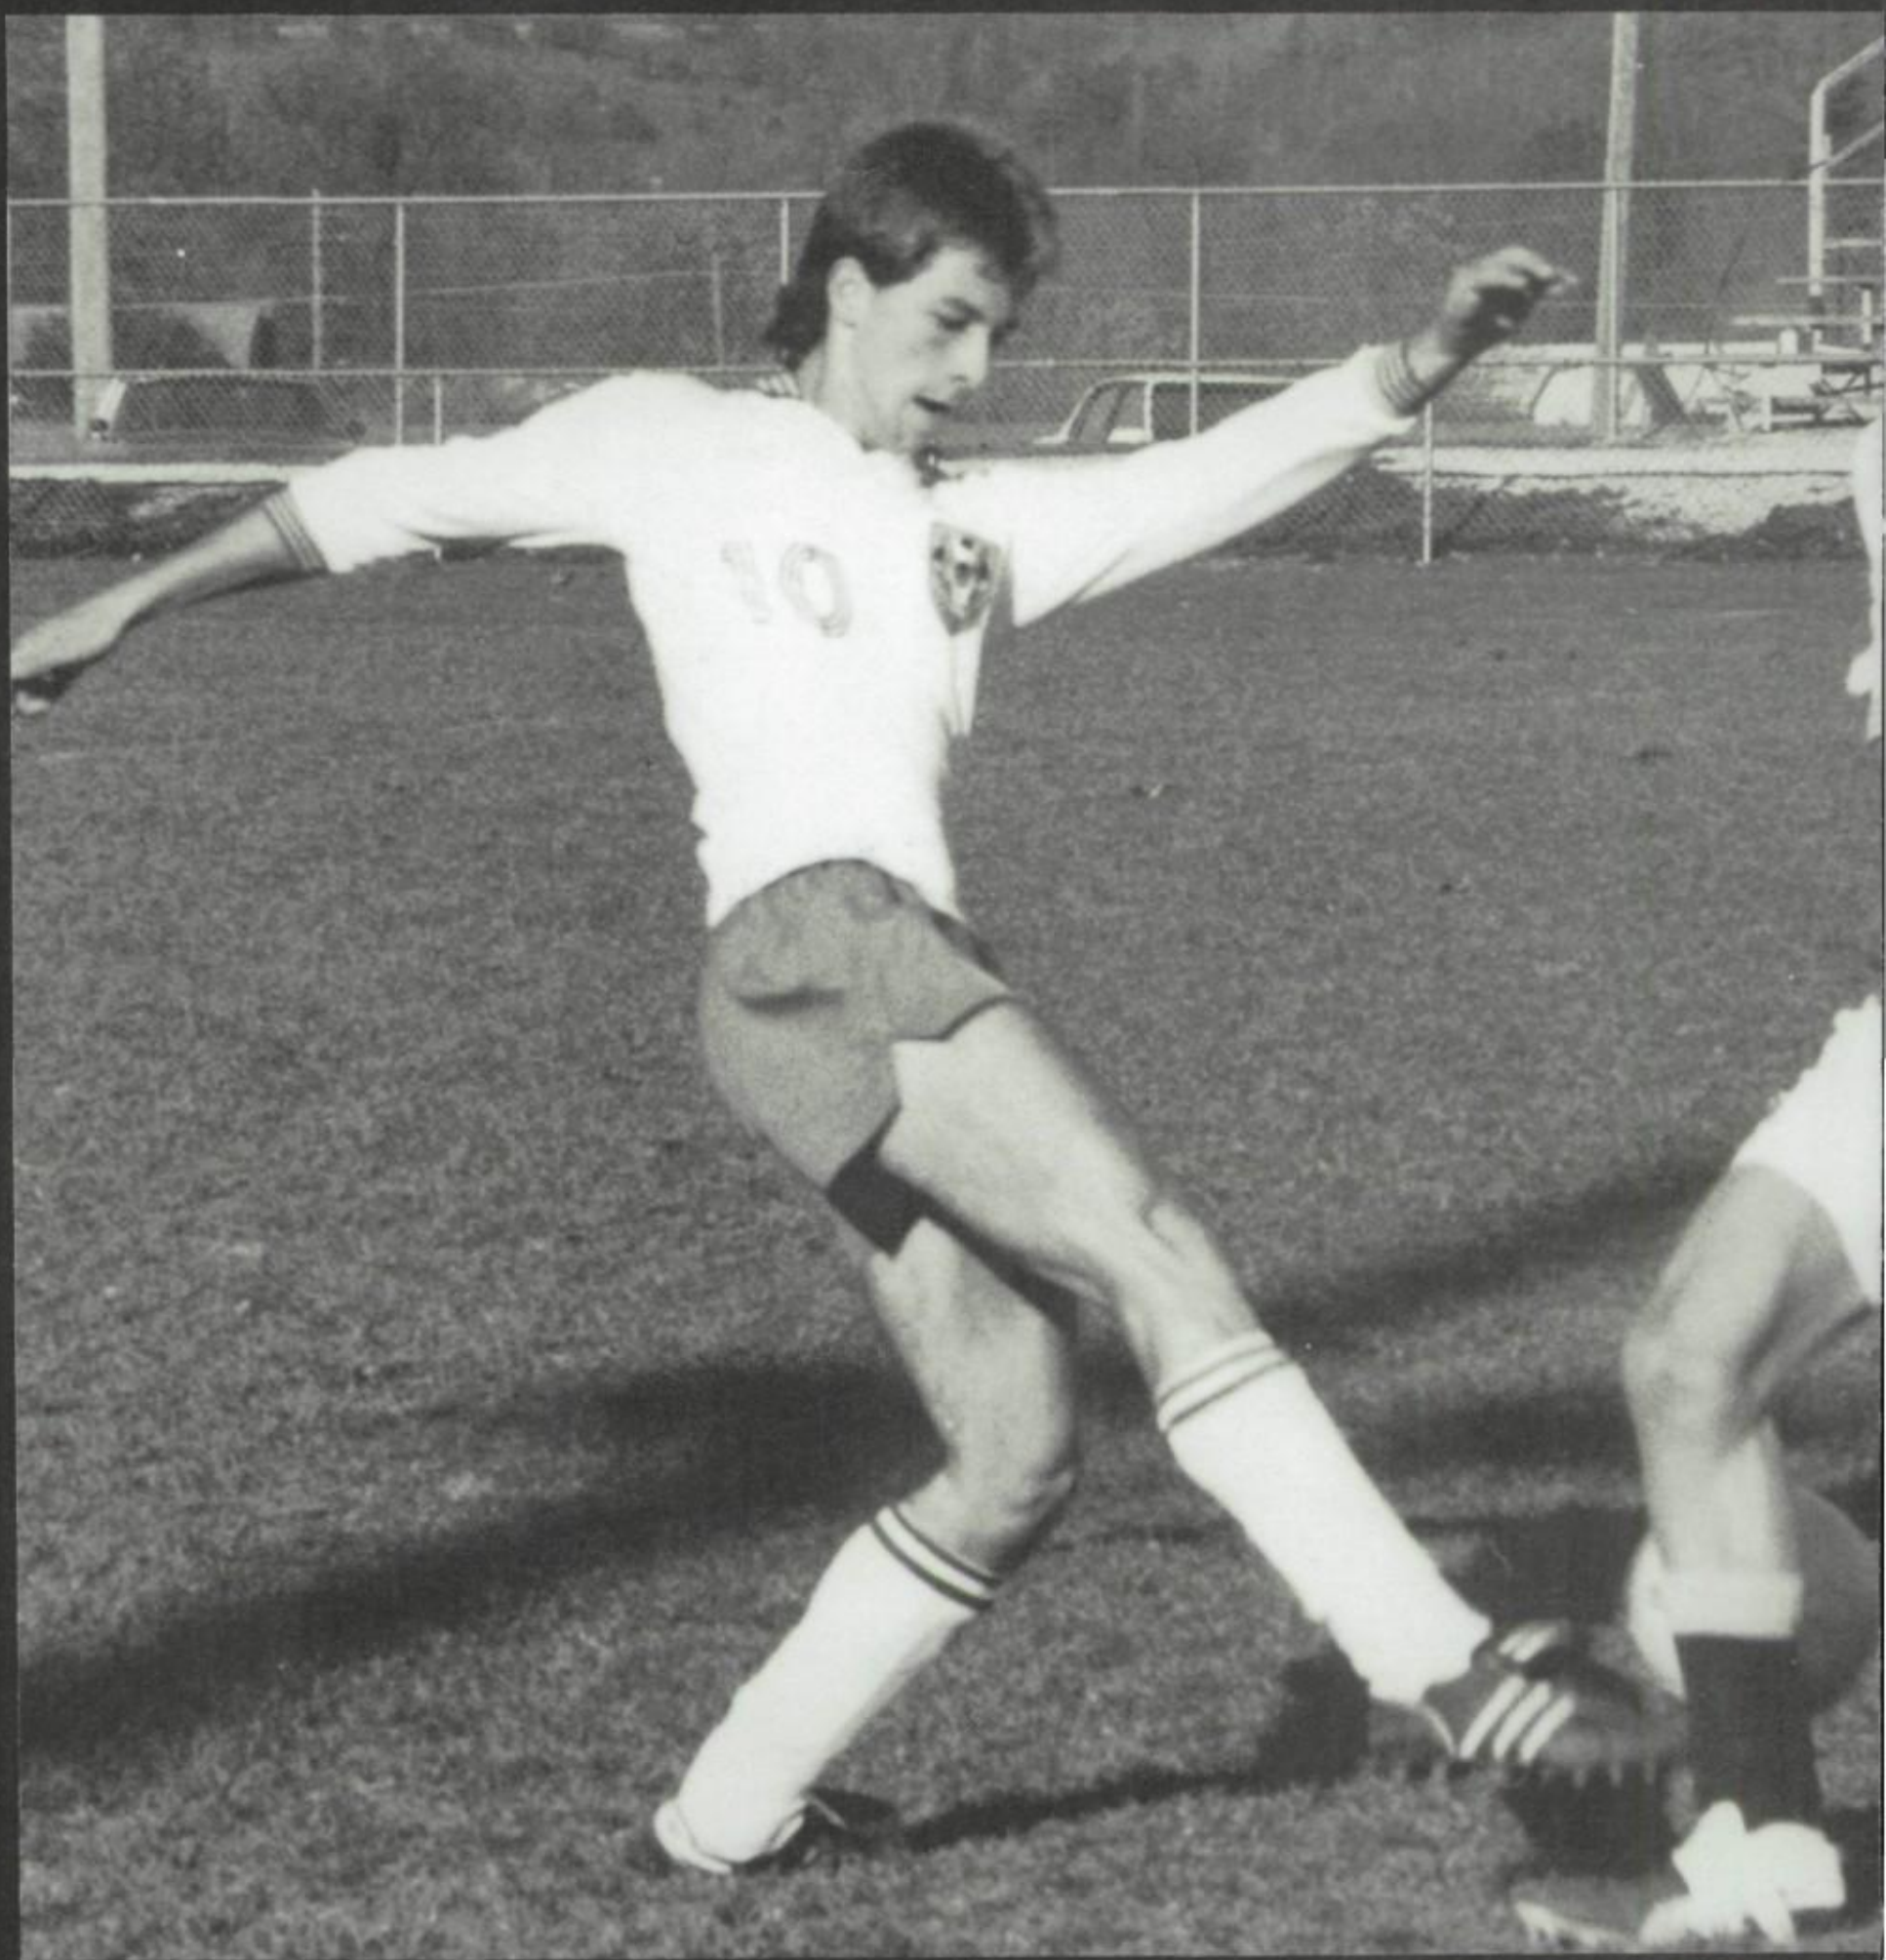

The fourth annual Homecoming Parade on October 15 sparked the beginning of the year for the bandfront. The band played the song "Nothing's Gonna Stop Us Now" and the flag, majorette, and rifle squads performed routines consisting of throws, kicks, and figure eights.

Mrs. Renshaw instructed the bandfront. The squads met three times during a six day cycle, and had practices throughout the summer. During these practices, they diligently strived to perfect their skills such as butterflies, spins, triplets, and overheads.

SPORTS

Sports-at your fingertips. Sports are an important element of high school and those who participate in it learn the meaning of discipline and teamwork. Students are active in the athletic program in many levels including being a team member, a manager, or a statistician.

Soccer, field hockey, golf, girls' and boys' basketball, wrestling, baseball, and softball are the sports in which senior high students participate. Junior high students are also active in sports and take part in field hockey, wrestling, and girls' and boys' basketball. The students on these sports teams work hard to make their team the best that it can be, and whether they have a winning or a losing season, each student will have acquired a memory full of special moments to cherish during his/her sports career at MHS.

Both fun and hard work are a part of the sports program at MHS because sports are-at your fingertips.

Cheerleaders Plan Pep Rallies, Parent's Night

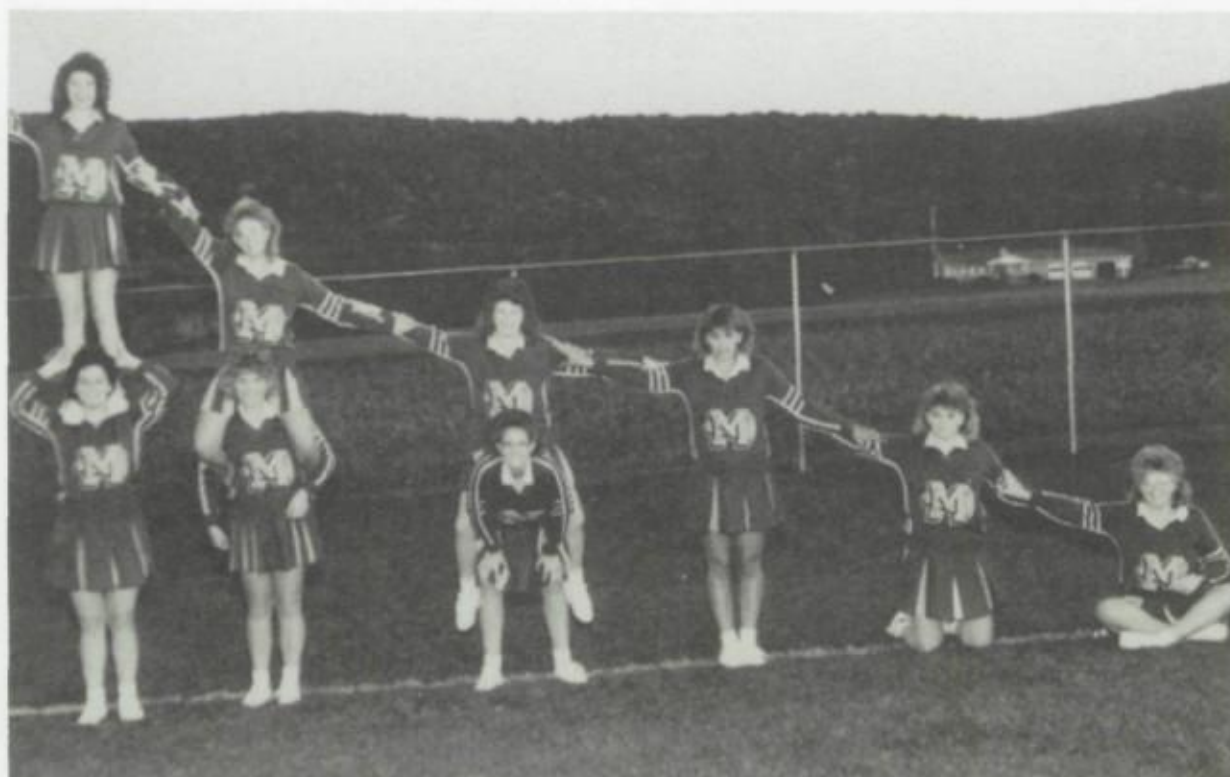

Sue Mull and Donna Mitchell took over the responsibility of the two cheerleading squads. The cheerleaders provided both the field hockey and soccer teams with encouragement throughout the fall season.

Under senior captains Angie Mull, Diane Angstadt, and Tammy Mitchell, the cheerleaders had a very busy season. Some of their activities included hanging posters and decorating athletes lockers. The cheerleaders held two pep rallies on the Sports Boosters Athletic Field for the two Fall Sports teams. During the pep rallies the girls led the student body in chants and cheers. The Sophomore Class won the spirit stick for being the most enthusiastic group. The cheerleaders also staged a mock tryout for four of the more energetic teachers. Mr. Soto, Mr. Weaver, and Miss Towsey did not prove to be as coordinated as Miss Smith, who was the winner.

During the summer the girls had a fruit cup and soft pretzel stand at the Middleburg and Kreamer carnivals, to help defray the costs of the miniature soccer balls, thrown at the home games, and balloons used during Parent's Night.

At the homecoming assembly, the varsity squad performed its routine to "Wipeout" by the Fat Boys, and junior varsity captain Linda Mitchell, led her squad's routine to "Only In My Dreams", by Debbie Gibson. During Parent's Night the varsity squad entertained the parents by performing to a Beach Boys medley.

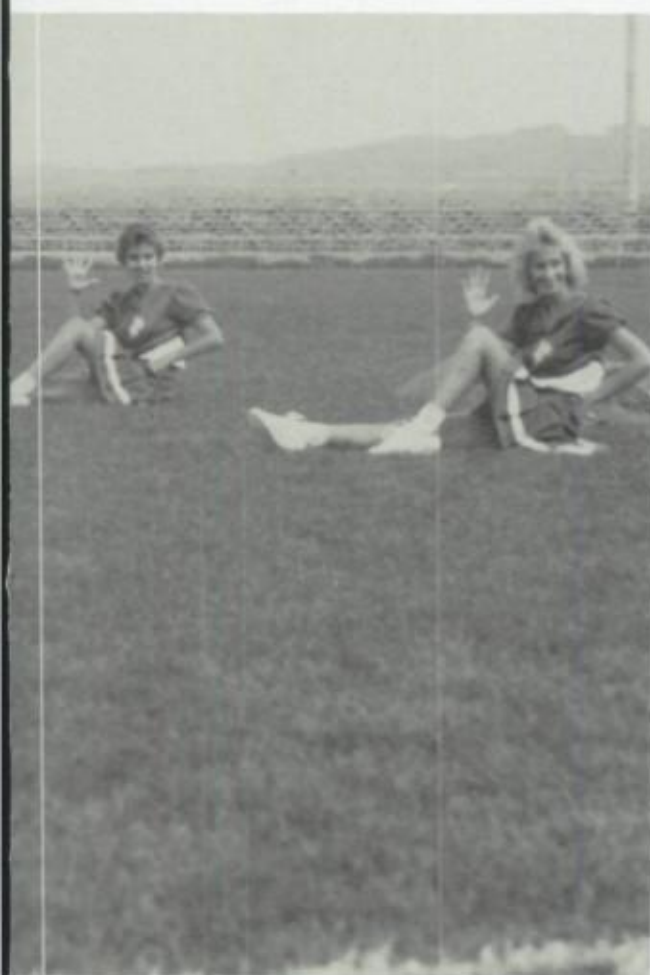

As in the past two years Bruiser, the school mascot played a major role in entertaining the fans and students at home events and pep rallies. Charles Leitzel, Andrea Courtney, Amy Kratzer, Darren Loss, and Cheri Sprenkel all helped the cheerleaders by playing role of the mascot.

Cheerleaders Provide Winter Athletes With Encouragement

The 1987-88 winter cheerleaders provided the girls' and boys' basketball teams, and the wrestling team with encouragement throughout the winter season. Sue Mull and Donna Mitchell supervised the girls' throughout the long winter season.

The girls held pep rallies for the three teams in the gym, to boost their morale and give them encouragement for their big game. They also hung posters throughout the school halls and in the gym for each upcoming game.

Under the leadership of senior-captains Angie Mull, Diane Angstadt, and Tammy Mitchell on the varsity squad, and co-captains Chris Hartley and Stephanie Sprenkel on the junior varsity squad, the girls held Parent's Night for the three winter sports teams. The girls also held a special night to recognize their own parents. During Parent's Night the girls displayed their cheerleading skills by performing a dance routine to entertain the crowd.

Junior High Athletes Focus on Fundamentals

An important part of the athletic program at Middleburg was junior high sports. Seventh and eighth grade students gained valuable experience and prepared for junior varsity and varsity sports. Athletes practiced after school in order to learn the rules and fundamentals of the sports offered by the program. Competing against other schools in the district exposed the players to pressure situations.

During the spring, many seventh and eighth grade girls played field hockey. Under the first year direction of Suellen Smith, the girls polished their skills of dribbling and dodging opponents. The girls had an eight game schedule. The eighth graders finished with a record of 4-3-1 while the seventh graders had a record of 3-1-4.

Both boys and girls participated in junior high basketball. During practice they refined their dribbling skills and worked diligently on their defensive skills. The girls' basketball team, coached by Les Mohapp, and the boys' basketball team, coached by Gordon Lee, both played 10 games. The eighth grade girls finished with a record of 8-2 while the seventh grade girls had an overall record of 0-10. The eighth grade boys had a record of 6-4 while the seventh grade boys had a record of 0-10.

Mike Snook coached the junior high wrestlers. The wrestlers competed against one another at practice in order to prepare themselves for matches against other schools. The team had a 14 match schedule.

COMMUNITY

Community-at your fingertips. The community surrounding MHS is a place where students are able to acquire part-time jobs from local businesses. Local businesses also provide students with a place of entertainment to socialize with friends.

Most students who work seek employment in Middleburg, Mt. Pleasant Mills, Selinsgrove, and Shamokin Dam. Many of the employees find their work enjoyable, and they often use their earned money for present needs or for future plans such as college.

Students also look to local businesses for entertainment. Shopping centers, restaurants, and roller skating rinks attract many MHS students throughout the week and on weekends. The Susquehanna Valley Mall and Vinnie's Pizza are two favorite hangout places.

Community provides students with a place to learn and grow outside of school, for the community is-at your fingertips.

Exchange Students, Teacher Attend MHS

Two foreign exchange students spent their senior year at MHS-Sabine Hermann from Germany and Jens Theisen from Denmark. A foreign exchange teacher from Japan, Mr. Jun Oishi, also spent several months in Middleburg before moving to a different town. All three learned much about America during their short visits.

Sabine and Jens learned about American life through school classes. The curriculum required them to take courses in American history, driver education, physical education, and English. They also took other individually selected classes.

Both Sabine and Jens agreed that the schools in America seemed easier or better than their schools back home. They also noticed some differences between the people of America and the people in their home countries. The parents in America seemed to be more strict while the students seemed to show spontaneous friendliness and warmth.

Sabine spent the year with David and Barbara Angstadt of R.D.#2 Middleburg. Jens stayed with the Terry Womer family before he moved to live with Stanford and Donna Mitchell of R.D.#3 Middleburg.

The foreign exchange teacher, Mr. Oishi, visited many classes to inform the students about Japanese life. He discussed Japanese government, culture, school system and taught the Japanese language to a few students. Through these activities, the students learned a great deal about Japan.

Mr. Oishi liked the inexpensive cost of living in America. He also enjoyed the individuality and friendliness of people in Middleburg. However, he preferred a larger city like his own in Japan because of the range of interesting activities available.

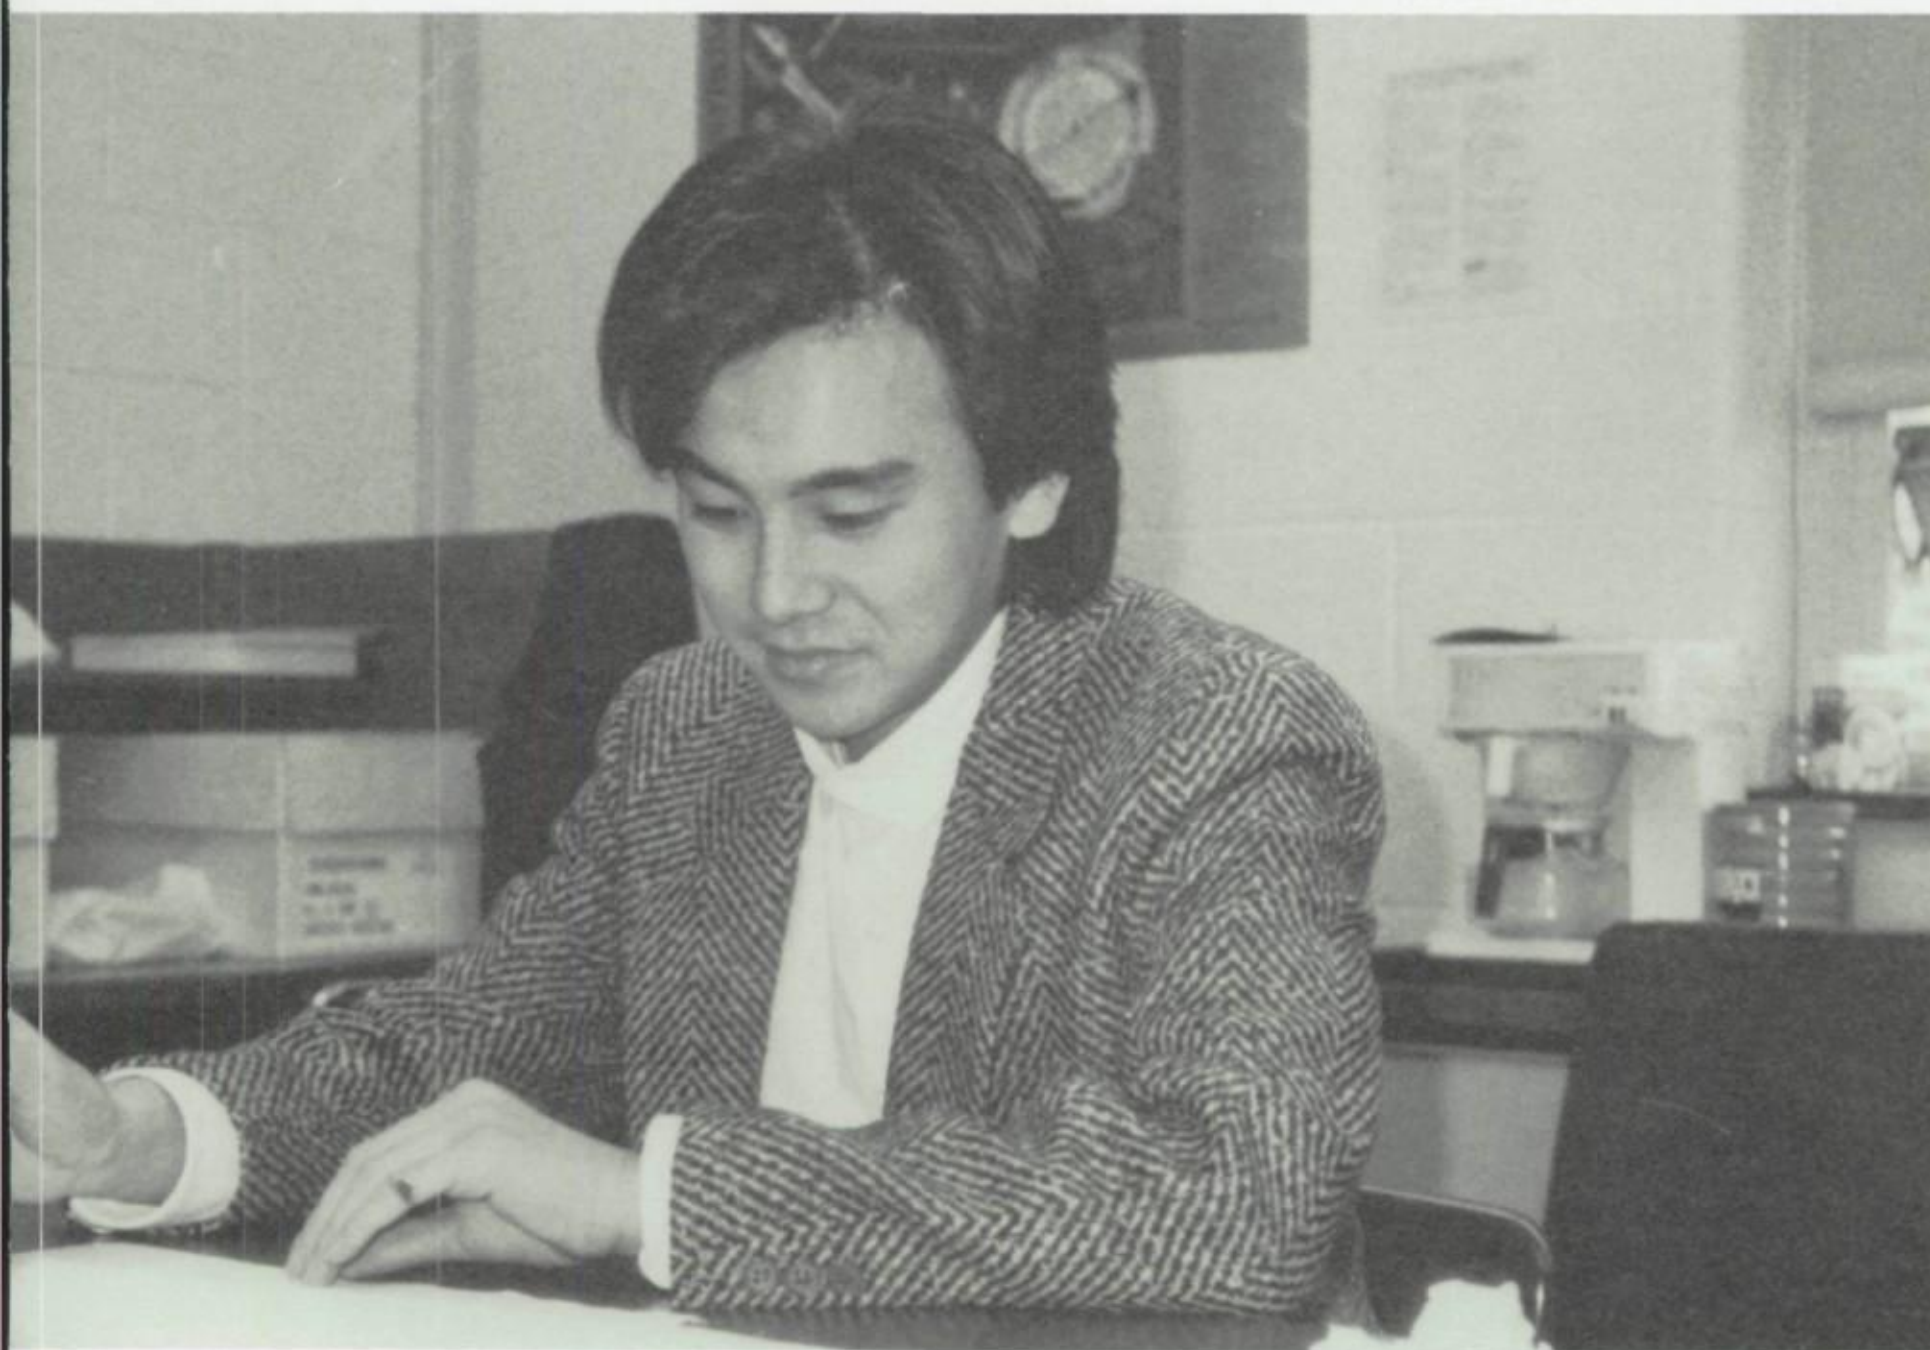

Previous to his visit in Middleburg, Mr. Oishi had stayed in Washington D.C. Then he stayed with the Karl Hertzler family of R.D.#1 Middleburg, until Thanksgiving.

Sabine, Jens, and Mr. Oishi all admitted that they missed their family and friends the most while in America. However, they were glad they had the chance to learn and experience American life.

Memories At Your Fingertips

Memories-at your fingertips. Throughout high school, the yearbook staff experienced both good times and bad, in and out of school. However, the good times prevailed and each staff member has a most memorable moment.

Peggy Bobb - When Shelbi and Cindy took me to the top of the mountain my first time skiing.

Becky Bramer - When Valerie and I did a chem lab for the class.

Melissa Hall - When we killed a fresh water muscle on a biology field trip

Michelle Myers - When I dropped my tray at lunch in eleventh grade.

Diane Wentzel - When I fell off the basketball bus.

Valerie Apple - When Becky and I made a cathedral out of rice krispie candy, graham crackers, and chocolate icing.

Michele Matsko - When Shelly and I visited the moon and saw a martian.

Shelly Oldt - When the mailbox jumped out in front of my car.

Deb Wentzel - When I jello wrestled.

Diane Angstadt - When Brett tried to use the Angle Side Side theorem in geometry class.

Wendy Loss - When Sherri and I went for yearbook ads.

Danelle Kratzer - When I ran up over the curb at K-Mart.

Krissy Mauser - When Angie and I wrote notes during chem class.

Angie Nipple - When I locked my car keys in my running car.

Shaun Keister - When Shelly told great stories in yearbook.

Cindy Stroup - When Shelbi and I went skiing with the ski club.

Sherri Shaffer - When Steph drove my car home from Juniata College.

Shelbi Heckman - When I tap danced on Mr. Sheaffer's desk in seventh grade.
